"GO AND KILL" VILLA URGED

Dramatic Address by Chief Outlaw
Preceded the Crossing of the Border
—Account Given by a Negro Scout.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
El Paso, Tex., March 15.—Francisco Villa halted his outlaws eight miles from the border to urge them to butchery before he led them to the massacre of Americans at Columbus.

Villa rode out before his men and put all the violence of his nature into a fiery denunciation of the Americans. He shook his fists toward the sleeping American town while the gurgles fell from his frothing lips. As he roared out his imprecations his men, who had been worn out by the long ride through the mountains, became a hysterical pack of human wolves. They flung themselves upon the ground, sobbing and writhing at the feet of their leader. As the outlaws wept and howled, Villa spurred them on. Finally he paused. There fell a silence as the men awaited his next move. Villa pointed to the gates of Columbus twinkling in the distance.

"Go and kill," he cried. "Kill the Americans."

With a shout the men sprang to their horses and as they spurred the jaded animals forward they shouted: "Kill the Americans."

As they got nearer to the town Villa lifted his arm. Once more his men were quiet and they began approaching Columbus silently and cautiously.

The dramatic story of Villa's address before the massacre was brought to the border today by Edwin R. Spencer, a negro scout, who had been attached to the army for duty on the expedition. Spencer saw the execution of the three American ranchers, Williams, McKinney and Corbett, who were captured in Mexico.

He was an employe on the ranch of Warren and Sons at Salto del Oro, Chihuahua, and had been made a prisoner by Villa's men a few days before the Columbus raid.

When the Villistas began their retreat Spencer escaped along with Mrs. and Hawk Wright, of Pearson. Spencer, fearing he would be mistaken for a Villa follower, fled to Hachita, than to Alamo Hueco and thence to the border.

It was while he was a prisoner that Spencer witnessed the execution of Arthur McKinney, William Corbett and Williams, at the Palomas ranch. "They had been making one of those quick Villa rides," explained Spencer. "The bandits knew that there was a regiment of Carranza troops at Palomas so they made a wide detour of the place. When they had passed the town Villa halted his men and it was then that he made the speech. It was the fiercest talk I ever heard. Villa yelled at his men that the gringos were responsible for conditions in Mexico. His talk was filled with curses and blasphemy. Villa got so excited that he froth stood upon his lips. Before he got through his men were screaming oaths and grovelling upon the ground shaking their fists toward Columbus. Villa kept yelling at his men and cursing the Americans. The followers were crazy—pure maniacs. I hope I never see such a sight again."

"When the bandits rode into Columbus I was kept behind with twenty Villistas who were caring for a band of reserve horses. I heard the first shot and then there came a blur of sounds in which rifle firing, bugle calls and shouting were all mixed up. The massacre began as soon as the Mexicans got into the town. I told one of the guards we ought to go."

"Go ahead, you're free," he replied. "I ran into the darkness in the direction of Hachita and finally reached the place."

"Williams and McKinney were caught by the Villa men because they thought the Villistas were Carranza soldiers. They came up looking at the brands on the horses to see if any of their horses were in the outfit. Villa ordered that the men be made prisoners and this was quickly done."

"First the prisoners were stripped naked and the garments were distributed among the men who immediately put them on. McKinney was killed first. He was hanged to save ammunition. The men put a rope around his neck, and without tying his hands, pulled him into the air with the rope over the bough of a tree. McKinney clutched at the rope with his hands and the men laughed at his struggles. When they had pulled the body up a few feet they slackened the rope and then caught it with a jerk. The blood spouted from McKinney's nostrils and mouth and ran down over his bare chest. He threw out his arms and legs and died struggling in the air. Corbett was choked to death before his body was pulled from the ground."

Spencer told of seeing Mrs. Wright in the hands of the outlaws. He said they treated her well because she was brave and could not be scared. Most of the time, Spencer said, she laughed at the threats of the bandits.

WOLVEN STORE AN OLD LANDMARK

Dry Goods Store For Many Years to be Discontinued, its $18,000 Stock
Having Been Sold to the Carl Company.

Recent years have witnessed many changes in the ownership of Wall street business properties and there are not many stores along the street between Main and North Front streets which have not changed owners several times since the erection of the present buildings, except the buildings which have been put up in the past few years.

The latest change on the street is that of the William Wolven dry goods store, which has passed from Mrs. Ella Wolven England, Mr. Wolven's sister, to Frank Forman.

The Wolven store occupies the site of the residence and harness shop of the late Daniel Johnston, who for many years was a well known resident of Kingston. The present store building was erected by the late George B. Merritt and John A. Heiser of Green street, who conducted the dry goods business there for many years under the name of George B. Merritt & Company.

That company was succeeded by Noah Wolven, who continued the dry goods business during his lifetime, and at his death the business was continued by his son, William Wolven, until he died. His sister, Mrs. England, has sold the store, stock and fixtures to Frank Forman, and Mr. Forman in turn has disposed of the large stock of goods to the Herbert Carl Dry Goods Company.

William Wolven in his lifetime followed out the traditions of the store as it was conducted by his predecessors, and bought a high class line of goods. He was a careful buyer and displayed good taste and judgment in his selections and the store always bore an excellent reputation among traders.

Shortly before Mr. Wolven's death he received a large stock of spring goods for the coming season. On the argument of the injunction proceedings recently before Judge Hasbrouck, which involved the question of whether the store, stock and fixtures had been bought by the Shattuck Realty Company for Mr. Forman or for Max Baker, it was agreed by all parties that the stock ought not to be tied up by litigation, but should be allowed to be sold as soon as possible. Its inventoried value was nearly $18,000.

Immediately upon Mr. Forman being given a decision that he and not Mr. Baker was the purchaser from the Shattuck Company, to which Mrs. England had made the sale, the entire stock was sold by Mr. Forman to the Herbert Carl Company, which intends to give Ulster county customers the benefit of its bargain and will place the stock on sale within a short time. Since the sale was made to the Carl Company, the price of many of the goods included in the sale has been advanced by the manufacturers and wholesale dealers, but the Carl Company announces that such advance will not in any way affect the prices at which the goods will be sold by them.

Mr. Forman has not announced any immediate plan for the use of the building.

HOW TO GRADE EGGS.

Demonstration at New Paltz Was
An Edifying Success.

Through the efforts of Josiah Sprague, Millard K. DuBois, and I. C. Barnes, and through the courtesy of the Johnston garage, in loaning their building, a successful demonstration in egg grading was held at New Paltz, Monday afternoon, March 13. Two cases of eggs were provided, one by Mr. Sprague and the other by Mr. DuBois. These eggs were spread on three tables arranged by the people in the Johnston garage.

The Farm Bureau manager brought Prof. L. M. Hurd, of the Poultry Department, College of Agriculture, who led the discussion. The eggs weighing over two ounces were separated from the others, and then these were again divided into browns, mixed and whites. Then the smaller eggs were re-graded. Prof. Hurd pointed out that it was a common practice for commission men to buy crates of fresh mixed eggs and then re-grade them and get a fancy price out of the eggs because of the grading.

Over 50 persons attended the demonstration. All asked questions which covered not only egg grading, but incubation, fertility, and other matters.

Hartman Good Breeding Pen.

On the morning of March 13, the breeding pen of yearling hens of Mr. Hartman, near Whiteport, was examined, the few undesirable individuals that could be found were eliminated and the individuals of the breeding pen which were left, were the kind which would produce vigorous, fertile eggs or vigorous day old chicks.

An Industry For Newburgh.

Because Poughkeepsie had no vacant factories, the Standard Aniline Products Company, Inc., has leased a vacant building in Newburgh where it expects to have 175 persons at work May 1st with a monthly pay roll of $10,000. The concern could not wait for the erection of suitable buildings.

DIARY TELLS VILLA'S SECRETS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., March 15.—Panchito Villa's most cherished secrets, the secrets that have made the outlaw chief's career such a long one, are in the hands of the state department at Washington today. In all probability they will be most important guides to the expedition that is ordered to wipe out the bandit leader. The secrets were revealed in a diary taken from the body of Pablo Lopez, Villa's prime assassin, after he was killed in the massacre at Columbus.

The diary is a handbook of slaughter and loot, an astounding revelation of the inside life and campaign of the Villa forces. But it is not as a human document that the book is important to the state department and the army.

Jotted Spanish notes reveal the mysteries that enabled him to defy law, order and humanity in the northern hills. They disclose the hidden trails over which Villa led his men when pressed, they show where his cannons are hidden and they disclose the names of the men who are smuggling arms to him as well as those who are acting as his agents along the border.

The dark pages of the book also tell of plotting that preceded the Santa Isabel massacre, when 18 Americans were taken from a train and slaughtered, and the Columbus raid. For ten days the book indicates Villa planned the Santa Isabel outrage. On the day chosen he and a detachment of men were in the foothills, another detachment was 15 miles away. The second detachment stopped the train bearing the Americans to see if there was an armed escort aboard. Then it wiggled to Villa. Assured that the train had no defense, Villa unleashed his cutthroats.

The contents of the diary were turned over to the government by the men who found it on Lopez's body.

HOW TALL IS MR. COOK?

Machine in Board of Health Office
Inadequate—Question Unsettled.

The board of health has recently installed a Bertillon weighing and measuring machine in the office at the city hall, which is used for securing both the weight and the height of those applying for working certificates. This morning Attorney Andrew J. Cook was at the city hall on legal business, and having a minute to spare dropped in the board's office, where he admired the new machine.

There was some question raised as to how tall Mr. Cook really was and to finally settle the question Mr. Cook stepped on the machine and Secretary Fred Safford, of the board of health, manipulated the measuring apparatus, but without success as Mr. Cook was too tall.

The machine is capable of measuring a height of 6 feet 1 inch, but Mr. Cook towers even beyond that.

CARRANZA TROOPS GO OVER TO VILLA

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Presidio, Tex., March 15.—Carranza troops at Ojinaga, the Mexican town just across the border from Presidio, have mutined and killed their commander, General Rojas. The mutiny occurred last night, but it was not until today that early reports of a revolt were confirmed.

The mutinous soldiers are said to have declared their intention of joining Francisco Villa and opposing any American troops that try to enter Mexico.

Troopers of the 13th U. S. Cavalry arrived here from Marfa today to guard against an attack on Presidio by the revolting Carranzistas.

BLIZZARD IMPEDES RAILWAY TRAFFIC

Reports From Points in New York
State Show That the Storm is Very Severe and Street Traffic is Delayed

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rochester, March 15.—The worst tie-up in traffic of the present winter was caused here today by a blizzard which began last night and is still raging. Traffic on three suburban trolley lines has been suspended, on others the service is crippled, while on the city lines the service is badly disarranged. Immense drifts have caused a suspension of traffic on two of the three Lake and Bay lines and on the Rochester and Sudus Bay railway and trains on all railroads are running from a half to three hours late.

Every available man in the city has been put to work by the street department and railway company in an effort to keep the streets open. Nearly a foot of snow has already fallen and at points where the wind has a clear sweep drifts are reported four feet deep.

Syracuse, March 15.—Traffic in this city and vicinity was severely hampered today by a heavy snow storm. General traffic on trolley and trunk lines was conducted with great difficulty. The storm, coupled with a fire in a power house of the state railways, forced thousands to walk to work in the early morning.

Buffalo, March 15.—One life was lost and several injuries and accidents reported as a result of a blizzard prevailing in this section for the past fifteen hours, the wind blowing 45 miles an hour. On his way to work this morning John Machowski, tannery worker, blinded by the storm, failed to observe the approach of a light engine on the Erie railroad and was killed. A track walker lost his way during the night, walked three miles in the wrong direction, and was so badly frozen that amputation of his left foot is considered necessary. Traffic was heavily handicapped but scheduled time has been maintained since daybreak.

Utica, March 15.—One of the severest storms of the winter prevailed in this section throughout the night and continued today, crippling steam and trolley service and making vehicular traffic in the country districts almost impossible. The quantity of snow in the Mohawk valley at the present time is greater than in several years at this period of winter and should a thaw develop and continue several days, heavy floods would result.

EL PASO CENSOR RIGHT ON HIS JOB

By Telegram to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., March 15.—The censorship had withstood up to 9 a. m. today official news of General Pershing's expeditionary force. Officers at Fort Bliss claim to have no information of any sort regarding the troops or their movements.

Private information from Hachita this morning was to the effect that everything was peaceful and quiet there.

General Funston was quoted here today as having threatened to put the whole border under martial law to prevent the news of troop movements becoming public.

General Gutierrez, the Carranza chief, was reported as leaving Juarez early today to take command of the Carranza forces in the field.

SENSATIONAL TALES WITHOUT ANY TRUTH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

El Paso, March 15.—Reports that Carranza troops had attacked the town of Hachita, N. M., were denied at Mexican military headquarters in Juarez today.

These reports which were very circumstantial and highly sensational, were sent out early this morning and will doubtless be printed as authentic in the "Lobster" editions of New York newspapers sold in Kingston this afternoon.

Change at Opera Lunch.

Clarence T. Freer has entered into partnership with Burt Davis, proprietor of the Opera Lunch on Fair street, and the two will operate the business, although the combination has nothing to do with Mr. Davis's lunch room on Railroad avenue. To accommodate the growing business the building will be enlarged in the future, according to the plans of the proprietors.

4,500 CAVALRYMEN ENTER MEXICO

By Telegram to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Texas, March 15.—American cavalry forces numbering 4,500 men, formed that section of the United States punitive expedition reported to have crossed the border into Mexico from Columbus, N. M., early today.

The column included portions of the Thirteenth, Tenth, Eighth and Seventh cavalry, accompanied by two ambulance companies and a field hospital company.

According to reports received here Col. George A. Dodd, commander of the Second cavalry brigade, was in command of the invading column, General Pershing having remained at Columbus. This was taken to mean that Columbus would be only the first and not the only place where troops would enter Mexico to hunt down Villa.

When the reports concerning the army movements were taken to Major Barnum, General Funston's chief of staff, he said: "I can tell you nothing."

General Funston was seen a few moments later at his residence. He said: "I cannot officially tell you whether troops have crossed the border because, honestly, I don't know. I have left all that in General Pershing's hands. If he crossed into Mexico early this morning I have not yet received word to that effect."

ARE WE IN FOR ANOTHER BLIZZARD?

The blizzard that broke over Kingston and vicinity during the night, and which raged all day, reminded many of the old residents of the famous blizzard of 1888 and there were a number of disputes today as to just when that blizzard started, and in order to settle all arguments, it is well to state that The Freeman records show that the blizzard of that year started on Sunday, March 11, with big snow flakes falling and the weather so warm that many wondered if the snow would turn to rain. There was no wind blowing. During the night the weather turned cold and the wind began to blow and Monday morning the thermometer registered zero with the wind blowing a gale.

The snow continued to fall throughout the day and on Tuesday, but Wednesday morning, March 13, the sun shone again and the wind subsided.

The storm of today started during the night and the thermometers dropped during the forenoon until they hovered around the ten above zero mark. The snow was accompanied by a wind which drifted the snow high in many places. Throughout the city many walks were blown clear of snow which piled up on the walks across the street, causing many householders to wish that their houses were located on the opposite side of the street.

The trolley cars continued to run but found considerable trouble in making the Broadway and Hasbrouck avenue hills as the snow that fell on the tracks prevented the wheels from securing a good grip on the rails.

Taxis and automobiles also found considerable trouble owing to the drifts on some of the side streets.

The cold weather that accompanied the storm stiffened up the ice on the river, making it safe again to cross, but the wind that blew made it extremely disagreeable for those who were forced to cross the river.

The city streets bore a deserted appearance today and the clerks in the stores found things quiet as no one ventured out of doors unless they found it necessary. The weather man promises more snow and colder weather for tonight and Thursday.

St. Patrick's Day Ball.

OSBORNE PERJURY CHARGE DISMISSED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

White Plains, March 15.—Supreme Court Justice Tompkins today dismissed the case against Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing prison, who was placed on trial here on Monday on a charge of perjury.

Justice Tompkins held that the state had not produced any evidence showing wilful perjury on the part of the defendant and that Dr. Rudolph Diedling, prison commissioner, had no authority to make any investigation such as he did conduct at Sing Sing.

Friends of the former warden of Sing Sing declared that the action of Justice Tompkins was complete exoneration for Mr. Osborne.

The motion to dismiss the indictment was made yesterday by George Gordon Battle.

"Before Dr. Diedling's investigation began he knew there were cases of immorality among the convicts and he knew that Mr. Osborne was also aware of them; therefore Mr. Osborne could not have deceived him as charged," ruled the judge.

SECOND COLUMN READY TO MARCH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Hachita, N. M., March 15.—Supposedly awaiting only the arrival of the First Cavalry from Monterey, Calif., to complete the complement of the brigade, the second column of the punitive expedition is mobilized at Culberson's Ranch, fifty miles south of here, and three miles from the boundary. It is fully equipped and ready to start upon the march into Mexico.

It is believed here that camp will be broken and "Forward March" sounded not later than tomorrow morning.

At Culberson's ranch will be the Seventh and Tenth cavalry, Battery B of the Sixth Field Artillery, four companies of the old 11th Infantry and the First Cavalry. The command also includes hospital and signal corps, two pack trains of sixty mules each, two wagon trains, and two baker companies from Fort Sam Houston.

The infantry will hold the base and guard the border while the cavalry pushes ahead.

Lieut. W. F. Nichols of the Seventh Cavalry is acting as quartermaster.

A signal corps wireless station has been established here and another at Culberson's.

The column is fully equipped with cowboys who know the mountains of northern Mexico like a book. They will act as guides.

The El Paso and Southwestern railroad upon which Hachita is situated is guarded by infantry the greater part of the way between Douglas and this town.

The absence of any mention in the foregoing dispatch of fighting at Hachita between Carranzistas and U. S. troops indicates that the rumors in El Paso of an invasion by Carranza's soldiers were false.

TILLSON.

Tillson, March 15.—Bennie Krom of Middletown spent the week end at Clarence Mertine's.

The many friends of Elmer Christiana are glad to hear he is improving after his operation at the hospital.

Owing to the storm the ladies of the Reformed Church had to postpone their dinner until this week Thursday.

Abel Deyo visited his family last week.

Dory Osterhout is preparing to have his saw mill moved to this place where it formerly stood. Quite a pile of logs is here waiting to be sawed. There will be something doing in Tillson then.

Abel North visited at Isaac Merrihew's over Sunday.

Miss Vivian Harms is confined to her home by illness.

Henry Myers has returned home from Illion.

Leon Mason is home ill with nausea.

The leap year party held in the ball was a success both socially and financially.

Shortly before Mr. Wolven's death he received a large stock of spring goods for the coming season. On the argument of the injunction proceedings recently before Judge Hasbrouck, which involved the question of whether the store, stock and fixtures had been bought by the Shattuck Realty Company for Mr. Forman or for Max Baker, it was agreed by all parties that the stock ought to be held up by litigation, but should be allowed to be sold as soon as possible. Its inventory value was nearly $18,000.

Immediately upon Mr. Forman's giving a decision that he and not Mr. Baker was the purchaser from the Shattuck Realty Company, to which Mrs. England had made the sale, the entire stock was sold by Mr. Forman to the Herbert Carl Company, which intends to give Ulster county customers the benefit of its bargain and will place the stock on sale within a short time. Since the sale was made to the Carl Company, the price of many of the goods included in the sale has been advanced by the manufacturers and wholesale dealers, but the Carl Company announces that such advance will not in any way affect the prices at which the goods will be sold by them.

Mr. Forman has not announced any immediate plan for the use of the building.

HOW TO GRADE EGGS.

Demonstration at New Paltz Was
An Edifying Success.

Through the efforts of Josiah Sprague, Millard K. DuBois, and I. C. Barnes, and through the courtesy of the Johnston garage, in loaning their building, a successful demonstration in egg grading was held at New Paltz, Monday afternoon, March 13. Two cases of eggs were provided, one by Mr. Sprague and the other by Mr. DuBois. These eggs were spread on three tables arranged by the people in the Johnston garage.

The Farm Bureau manager brought Prof. L. M. Hurd, of the Poultry Department, College of Agriculture, who led the discussion. The eggs weighing over two ounces were separated from the others and then these were again divided into brown, mixed and whites. Then the smaller eggs were re-graded. Prof. Hurd pointed out that it was a common practice for commission men to buy crates of fresh mixed eggs and to re-grade them and get a fancy price out of the eggs because of the grading.

Over 50 persons attended the demonstration. All asked questions which covered not only egg grading, but incubation, fertility, and other matters.

DIARY TELLS VILLA'S SECRETS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., March 15.—Pancho Villa's most cherished secrets, the secrets that have made the outlaw chief's career such a long one, are in the hands of the state department at Washington today. In all probability they will be most important guides to the expedition that is ordered to wipe out the bandit leader. The secrets were revealed in a diary taken from the body of Pablo Lopez, Villa's prime assassin, after he was killed in the massacre at Columbus.

The diary is a handbook of slaughter and loot, an astounding revelation of the inside life and campaign of the Villa forces. But it is not as a human document that the book is important to the state department and the army.

Jotted Spanish notes reveal the mysteries that enabled him to defy law, order and humanity in the northern hills. They disclose the hidden trails over which Villa led his men when pressed, they show where his cannon are hidden and they disclose the names of the men who are smuggling arms to him as well as those who are acting as his agents along the border.

The dark pages of the book also tell of plotting that preceded the Santa Ysabel massacre, when 18 Americans were taken from a train and slaughtered, and the Columbus raid. For ten days the book indicates Villa planned the Santa Ysabel outrage. On the day chosen he and a detachment of men were in the foothills, another detachment was 15 miles away. The second detachment stopped the train bearing the Americans to see if there was an armed escort aboard. Then it waggled to Villa. Assured that the train had no defense, Villa unleashed his cutthroats.

The contents of the diary were turned over to the government by the men who found it on Lopez's body.

HOW TALL IS MR. COOK?

Machine in Board of Health Office Inadequate—Question Unsettled.

The board of health has recently installed a Bertillon weighing and measuring machine in the office at the city hall, which is used for securing both the weight and the height of those applying for working certificates. This morning Attorney Andrew J. Cook was at the city hall on legal business, and having a minute to spare dropped in the board's office, where he admired the new machine.

There was some question raised as to how tall Mr. Cook really was, and to finally settle the question Mr. Cook stepped on the machine and Secretary Fred Sahloff, of the board of health, manipulated the measuring apparatus, but without success as Mr. Cook was too tall.

The machine is capable of measuring a height of 6 feet 1 inch, but Mr. Cook towers even beyond that.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Presidio, Tex., March 15.—Carranza troops at Ojinaga, the Mexican town just across the border from Presidio, have mutined and killed their commander, General Rojas. The mutiny occurred last night, but it was not until today that early reports of a revolt were confirmed.

The mutinous soldiers are said to have declared their intention of joining Francisco Villa and opposing any American troops that try to enter Mexico.

Troopers of the 13th U. S. Cavalry arrived here from Marfa today to guard against an attack on Presidio by the revolting Carranzistas.

BLIZZARD IMPEDES RAILWAY TRAFFIC

Reports From Points in New York
State Show That the Storm is Very Severe and Street Traffic is De-
layed

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rochester, March 15.—The worst tie-up in traffic of the present winter was caused here today by a blizzard which began last night and is still raging. Traffic on three suburban trolley lines has been suspended, while on others the service is crippled, while on the city lines the service is badly disarranged. Immense drifts have caused a suspension of traffic on two of the three Lake and Bay lines and on the Rochester and Sudus Bay railway and trains on all railroads are running from a half to three hours late.

Every available man in the city has been put to work by the street department and railway company in an effort to keep the streets open, nearly a foot of snow has already fallen and at points where the wind has a clean sweep drifts are reported four feet deep.

Syracuse, March 15.—Traffic in this city and vicinity was severely hampered today by a heavy snow storm. General traffic on trolley and trunk lines was conducted with great difficulty. The storm, coupled with a fire in a power house of the state railways, forced thousands to walk to work in the early morning.

Buffalo, March 15.—One life was lost and several injuries and accidents reported as a result of a blizzard prevailing in this section for the past fifteen hours. The wind blowing 45 miles an hour. On his way to work this morning John Machowski, tannery worker, blinded by the storm, failed to observe the approach of a light engine on the Erie railroad and was killed. A track walker lost his way during the night, walked three miles in the wrong direction, and was so badly frozen that amputation of his left foot is considered necessary. Traffic was heavily handicapped but scheduled time has been maintained since daybreak.

Utica, March 15.—One of the severest storms of the winter prevailing in this section throughout the night and continued today, crippling steam and trolley service and making vehicular traffic in the country districts almost impossible. The quantity of snow in the Mohawk valley at the present time is greater than in several years at this period of winter and should a thaw suddenly develop and continue several days, heavy floods would result.

EL PASO CENSOR

By Telegram to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., March 15.—The censorship had withheld up to 9 a. m. today official news of General Pershing's expeditionary force. Officers at Fort Bliss claim to have no information of any sort regarding the troops or their movements.

Private information from Hachita this morning was to the effect that everything was peaceful and quiet there.

General Funston was quoted here today as having threatened to put the whole border under martial law to prevent the news of troop movements becoming public.

General Gutierrez, the Carranza chief, was reported as leaving Juarez early today to take command of the Carranza forces in the field.

SENSATIONAL TALES WITHOUT ANY TRUTH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

El Paso, March 15.—Reports that Carranza troops had attacked the town of Hachita, N. M., were denied at Mexican military headquarters in Juarez today.

These reports which were very circumstantial and highly sensational, were sent out early this morning and will doubtless be printed as authentic in the "Lobster" editions of New York newspapers sold in Kingston this afternoon.

4,500 CAVALRYMEN ENTER MEXICO

By Telegram to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Texas, March 15.—American cavalry forces numbering 4,500 men, formed that section of the United States punitive expedition reported to have crossed the border into Mexico from Columbus, N. M., early today.

The column included portions of the Thirteenth, Tenth, Eighth and Seventh cavalry, accompanied by two ambulance companies and a field hospital company.

According to reports received here Col. George A. Dodd, commander of the Second cavalry brigade, was in command of the invading column, General Pershing having remained at Columbus. This was taken to mean that Columbus would be only the first and not the only place where troops would enter Mexico to hunt down Villa.

When the reports concerning the army movements were taken to Major Barnum, General Funston's chief of staff, he said:

"I can tell you nothing."

General Funston was seen a few moments later at his residence. He said:

"I cannot officially tell you whether troops have crossed the border because, honestly, I don't know. I have left all that in General Pershing's hands. If he crossed into Mexico early this morning I have not yet received word to that effect."

ARE WE IN FOR ANOTHER BLIZZARD?

The blizzard that broke over Kingston and vicinity during the night, and which raged all day, reminded many of the old residents of the famous blizzard of 1888 and there were a number of disputes today as to just when that blizzard started, and in order to settle all arguments, it is well to state that the Freeman records show that the blizzard of that year started on Sunday, March 11, with big snow flakes falling and the weather so warm that many wondered if the snow would turn to rain. There was no wind blowing. During the night the weather turned cold and the wind began to blow and Monday morning the thermometer registered zero with the wind blowing a gale. The snow continued to fall throughout the day and on Tuesday, but Wednesday morning, March 13, the sun shone again and the wind subsided.

The storm of today started during the night and the thermometers dropped during the forenoon until they hovered around the ten above zero mark. The snow was accompanied by a wind which drifted the snow high in many places. Throughout the city many walks were blown clear of snow which piled up on the walks across the street, causing many householders to wish that their houses were located on the opposite side of the street.

The trolley cars continued to run but found considerable trouble in making the Broadway and Haverhill avenue hills as the snow that fell on the tracks prevented the wheels from securing a good grip on the rails.

Taxis and automobiles also found considerable trouble owing to the drifts on some of the side streets.

The cold weather that accompanied the storm stiffened up the ice on the river, making it safe again to cross, but the wind that blew made it extremely disagreeable for those who were forced to cross the river.

The city streets bore a deserted appearance today and the clerks in the stores found things quiet as no one ventured out of doors unless they found it necessary. The weather man promises more snow and colder weather for tonight and Thursday.

St. Patrick's Day Ball.

OSBORNE PERJURY CHARGE DISMISSED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

White Plains, March 15.—Supreme Court Justice Tompkins today dismissed the case against Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing prison, who was placed on trial here on Monday on a charge of perjury.

Justice Tompkins held that the state had not produced any evidence showing wilful perjury on the part of the defendant and that Dr. Rudolph Diedling, prison commissioner, had no authority to make any investigation such as he did conduct at Sing Sing.

Friends of the former warden of Sing Sing declared that the action of Justice Tompkins was complete exoneration for Mr. Osborne.

The motion to dismiss the indictment was made yesterday by George Gordon Battle.

Before Dr. Diedling's investigation began he knew there were cases of immorality among the convicts and he knew that Mr. Osborne was also aware of them; therefore Mr. Osborne could not have deceived him as charged," ruled the judge.

SECOND COLUMN READY TO MARCH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Hachita, N. M., March 15.—Supposedly awaiting only the arrival of the First Cavalry from Monterey, Calif., to complete the complement of the brigade, the second column of the punitive expedition is mobilized at Culberson's Ranch, fifty miles south of here, and three miles from the boundary. It is fully equipped and ready to start upon the march into Mexico.

It is believed here that camp will be broken and "Forward March" sounded not later than tomorrow morning.

At Culberson's ranch will be the Seventh and Tenth Cavalry, Battery B of the Sixth Field Artillery, four companies of the old 11th Infantry and the First Cavalry. The command also includes hospital and signal corps, two pack trains of sixty mules each, two wagon trains, and two baker companies from Fort Sam Houston.

The infantry will hold the base and guard the border while the cavalry pushes ahead.

Lieut. W. F. Nichols of the Seventh Cavalry is acting as quartermaster.

A signal corps wireless station has been established here and another at Culberson.

The column is fully equipped with cowboys who know the mountains of northern Mexico like a book. They will act as guides.

The El Paso and Southwestern railroad upon which Hachita is situated is guarded by infantry the greater part of the way between Douglas and this town.

The absence of any mention in the foregoing dispatch of fighting at Hachita between Carranzistas and U. S. troops indicates that the rumors in El Paso of an invasion by Carranza's soldiers were false.

The KITCHEN CABINET

As disasters are sudden, triumphs are unexpected. The spirit of victory is as rapid as the genius of ruin. To get up and go on when you're knocked down is to get somewhere.—Charles Sandberg.

THE DELICIOUS RAISIN.

In days of old the popular superstition in regard to raisins was that if eaten raw they caused fits in children. This idea still clings to many, as you occasionally read an article which says not to feed raisins to children.

Small children should not eat any tough skinned fruit as they do not masticate it and it might cause digestive disturbances, but after the child has teeth and is taught to use them properly there can be no reason that a few raisins now and then should not be a benefit.

Raisins have a decided medicinal value, as they have a laxative effect, but for those who have trouble in digesting them they are best steamed or cooked in bread, when the skin is softened and made easier of mastication.

The English people should teach us the proper value of the raisin as they eat six pounds per capita while we eat one.

Raisin Sandwiches.—Chop fine one cupful of raisins with a cupful of nuts, pecans or walnuts, mix with whipped cream, a dash of salt and spread on thin slices of buttered bread. Prepare only a short while before serving and the raisins are better and more digestible if steamed before using.

Raisins with bread and butter make the finest kind of a lunch when traveling, and are always ready to take.

A delicious little cake to serve with tea in the afternoon is the marguarite. Take small round wafers and heap on them the whipped white of an egg with two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, a tablespoonful of chopped nuts and two of chopped raisins steamed. Put into the oven and bake until well puffed up and brown.

Raisin pie is so delicious we should serve it often and it is not more expensive than many ordinary pie fillings. Stir together a cupful of water, a tablespoonful of cornstarch and a cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the grated rind of a lemon, the juice, and a cupful of chopped raisins. Cook this until smooth and thick, cool, then bake with two crusts.

WAR DEPARTMENT MUM BUT EXPECTANT

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 15.—Although there was not the slightest doubt that the Pershing expedition to "get Villa" was well on its way south from the New Mexican border, the war department withheld official announcement early today. There was no mistaking the air of expectancy, however, among the officers on duty. They plainly expected a record dash on the part of the punitive expedition which now must engage in a race with the Carranzista soldiers. Confidential advices from the border show that Carranza now has more than half his entire army tracking Villa and his officers are bending every effort to get him before the American forces reach the scene.

The censorship over the operations on the border was made absolute today. Because of the danger of attempts to attack American towns or settlements General Funston has spread his men all along the line. At certain places these forces have been made very strong because of secret information conveyed to the war department by the agents of the department of justice. But all information is withheld as to dispositions to prevent the news reaching Mexican spies.

It was stated today that the response to the orders to recruit the army to full war strength will probably be the greatest in the states along the border. Nearly every recruiting officer in that section has a long waiting list of eligibles and they will be sent for at once. While awaiting the favorable action of the senate on the Hay resolution granting authority, which passed the House yesterday, the army experts will examine these men, perfect their enlistment papers, and get them ready to start to the recruit bases at once.

There will be no attempt made to drill these men together. Instead all will be sent directly to the border or to army posts where troops now are and incorporated with the well trained units already on duty. In this way the recruits will become immediately available for service as they will be hedged in on every side by men who know the ropes. The result will be that the new men will know the duties of a soldier in far less time than ordinarily is required.

This action in increasing the regular army was done to prevent any calling on the National Guard. The administration has been under the strongest pressure from nearly every state in Union to accept at least some of the local troops for action. To make a selection would have proven difficult and at the same time, would have aroused jealousies that might have proven serious later on. As a result the president has decided that until every resource of the regular army has been exhausted, no other steps will be taken. So long as only regulars are moving along the border, the anti-American agitation probably can be held in check by Carranza. But if guardsmen go to the front the motive is likely to be misunderstood.

There are still approximately 12,000 coast artillerymen available for field service. These men could be started for the border within 24 hours as their provisional organization has been arranged and their equipment is ready. All that will be needed to get them in motion if they are needed on the border will be the transportation and this now is being made ready.

Meanwhile the activities of "revolutionary promoting brokers" in this country is causing officialdom some concern. Agents of the department of justice are looking for General Felix Diaz, who is reported to have again slipped into this country. The department has heard that he is en route to New York to confer with Mexican leaders there.

The state department expects today an official reply from General Carranza to its telegram of Monday. All advices so far received from representatives in the territory absolutely dominated by Carranza say that there has been no excitement and that the Carranzista officials have a firm grasp on the situation. The trouble so far seems entirely confined to the north and even there have been no serious anti-

American demonstrations. By orders of the state department every consular agent in Mexico is doing his utmost to assure the people regarding the intentions of the United States. Secretary Lansing's public statement "on behalf of the president" is being translated into Spanish and spread broadcast.

It is accepted that the situation must remain uncertain for some days. The slightest clash between American and Carranzista troops would cause an explosion that must end in real war. Every effort will be made to avoid this but among the Carranzista commanders who now are actively engaged in the pursuit of Villa are a number noted for their anti-American tendencies. In addition the withdrawal of Carranzista troops from the west coast line has laid many places where there are many Americans open to attack by newly organized bandit aggregations.

Many reports of border clashes were received here today but in every instance the war department was without information and characterized them as "undoubtedly without foundation." While General Funston is in absolute authority and can do as he pleases with the forces under his command in enforcing the order sent to him to "get Villa" it was said that he could be depended on to report directly to the department any fighting that takes place.

General Who Will Get 'Villa, Dead or Alive'

BRIG.-GEN. JOHN M. PERSHING.

When Francisco Villa and his Mexican bandits rode across the border at Columbus, N. M., and killed sixteen Americans General Pershing was known to comparatively few Americans outside regular army circles. Now, the order having gone out that Villa must be captured or killed, General Pershing, commanding the expedition that will scour Mexico in pursuit of the outlaw, will write some few pages in American history. He is a determined and efficient soldier and undoubtedly will uphold all the traditions of our army in the field.

Monograms Reorganized.
The Red Monogram Baseball Club have reorganized for the season of 1916, and will hold their election of officers on March 28, at the club rooms on Hasbrouck avenue. This aggregation of ball tossers furnished the fans of the city with the best line of ball last season and the 1916 outlook is much brighter. Their many friends will be glad to hear they already have undertaken a play of reliable character, which they will present to the public in the near future.

Metz is a Director.
At a meeting of the stockholders of the Farbwerke-Hoechst Company in the town of Esopus March 11, Herman Metz was elected director for the ensuing year. The inspectors of election were Alfred E. Henricks and Herman Ellsworth.

SIX MONTHS FOR FURNITURE SWINDLE

Judge Brady, in Albany police court Tuesday, handed out to Samuel Doling a six months' sentence in the Albany penitentiary. Doling was charged by Nellie Franklin, of 88 Myrtle avenue, with conducting a lottery. She alleged that she had been induced to enter a scheme with the Western Grand Rapids Furniture Company, a concern now in bankruptcy, on November 11, 1913, by which she was to pay 25 cents a week until $17.50 was paid in, at which time she was given permission to select any article of furniture, clothing or jewelry to the value of the money paid in, but in the meantime she had a chance to win the furniture or other articles selected after she had paid in the first 25 cents.

A drawing, it is alleged, was made each week and each week the complainant stood a chance of being the lucky winner. Judge Brady had received many complaints against the concern, of which Doling was alleged to be the moving spirit, but it was difficult to get any of the complainants to make a formal charge until Mrs. Franklin appeared with her complaint, and she did not hesitate to make a charge. Assistant District Attorney John Conaway conducted the prosecution and Louis F. O'Neil appeared for Doling. O'Neil subsequently filed notice of appeal with Judge Brady and he says he will carry the case to a higher court.—Albany Argus.

A number of Kingston people were "stung" the past summer on a similar scheme of joining a "furniture club" and some of them paid in the required $17.50 but did not receive the furniture. It is understood that the concern which organized the local "furniture club" had headquarters in an upstate city.

MANY WERE OUT TO HEAR FATHER PAUL

St. Joseph's Church Crowded Last Night at First of Series of Lenten Sermons—Address on Reunion.

Father Paul, better known in Kingston as the Rev. Lewis T. Watson, delivered the first of a series of Lenten sermons Tuesday night before an audience of 900 persons who crowded St. Joseph's Church. Father Paul preached first at an introductory conference at which his subject was "Is Reunion Possible?" Under this head the speaker treated of the possibility of all religious denominations coming under one head and pictured the position of the Holy Father, the Pope, who he declared to be in hearty accord with such reunion, praying and hoping that some day would see all dissenting beliefs under one religion.

The main topic of the evening was "The Soul and Sin" in which the speaker eloquently presented to his hearers the value of the former and the heinousness of sin. Father Paul will be heard again Tuesday evening at St. Joseph's Church, and Christians of all denominations are invited.

Klines Agree to Settle.
Despite the severe snow storm that raged this morning there was a large number gathered in the corridors of the city hall who had assembled to hear the trial of Sanford H. Kline, on a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, which was slated for trial, but they were disappointed as after a lengthy conference between Mr. and Mrs. Kline and their attorneys, Andrew J. Cook who represented Mrs. Kline and Judge O'Reilly who represented Mr. Kline, a settlement was reached and when the lawyers appeared in recorder's court before Recorder Lang they announced that Mr. Kline had agreed to pay his wife $5 a week and she had agreed to accept that amount. Recorder Lang decided to hold the case open until April 12.

Buley Likes California.
Alfred H. Buley of this city, who is now located at Modesto, California, where he is physical director of the Modesto Y. M. C. A., is meeting with great success in his work. This summer he will have charge of a month's camping trip of the members of the association to the High Sierras of the Yosemite National Forest, and a newspaper of that city devotes a column outlining the trip. Mr. Buley married Miss Olga Thompson, granddaughter of Mrs. Barbara Brantz, and daughter of Edgar H. Thompson. His many Kingston friends will be pleased to hear of his success in Y. M. C. A. work in the west.

All Will Enjoy Themselves.
What points to the biggest event of the season is going to be held on Friday night at the Holy Cross parish house when the Holy Cross basketball team holds their big dance. All arrangements for a good time are being made. At this time the compliments of the season by the team will be handed out to all those who attend. Good music will be a feature, and a most enjoyable time for everybody is anticipated.

New Wholesale Grocery.
Ground was broken this week for the new building of Harrison & Blankfield, on Field Court, by O. Van Aken, the contractor, who will erect the structure. The carpenter work will be done by T. I. Rittenbury & Son, while the plumbing contract has not yet been awarded.

Many Mica Deposits.
Mica deposits sufficiently large to develop exist in twenty states.

Woman's World

The President's Daughter is an Advocate of Suffrage.

MISS MARGARET WILSON.

Miss Wilson always has been a suffragist at heart, but it was not until last year, after her father had announced his own views on the question of votes for women, that she permitted herself to come out and work for the enfranchisement of her sex. She had for several years attended as a silent spectator at the mass meetings of the suffrage societies. Even now she seldom makes speeches, since she needs to save her voice for her chosen career as a vocal artist.

Recently Miss Wilson was one of the hostesses at a suffrage tea given in New York, where Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the national children's bureau, spoke about the relation of suffrage to child welfare. The children's bureau is another one of the humanitarian interests of Miss Wilson, whose unaffected love of humanity has led her to ally herself with many philanthropic movements.

It is said that she always gives the proceeds of her concert money to the work for the blind, for, while she is an enthusiastic lover of her work, she does not sing to enrich herself, but to help mankind.

FANCY HATBANDS IN FAVOR.

Some of the Pretty, Frivolous Things That Appear This Season.

Fancy adjustable hatbands are a feature of the new millinery and appeal to the woman whose longing for variety is hampered by a limited purse. They furnish an excellent means of introducing daring touches of color in an otherwise dark street costume and are adaptable to the stiff crowned, narrow brimmed models as well as to the soft sports hats of felt and beaver for which they were originally designed.

Plain colored ribbons in the new, bright shades as well as in striped and blocked effects, combining two colors in sharp contrast, are the most used for adjustable hatbands. Many of these are so woven as to pass for hand knitted bands and have a convenient elasticity which makes them easily adjustable to any size crown. Others are of a stiff ribbed silk similar to belting and fasten under the flattest of tailored bows.

Double faced ribbons, showing a dark shade on one side and a vivid coloring on the other, are among the most satisfactory for fancy hatbands, as they are capable of almost endless variety in adjustment.

What About The Teeth?

Statistics that only about 14 out of every 500 New York City school children have sound teeth. Probably similar conditions prevail elsewhere.

There's a Reason! And it lies to a great extent in the demineralized foods that make up the usual diet of children. The body must have its quota of mineral elements—lime for the teeth, iron for the blood, phosphate of potash for the nerves, etc.—or disaster is pretty sure to follow. Many foods—especially white bread—are woefully lacking in these vital mineral elements.

The famous food,

Grape-Nuts

is rich in these elements. It is made of whole wheat and malted barley, retaining the mineral salts so abundantly stored in the grain by Nature.

Grape-Nuts is easily digested, appetizing, and highly nourishing. Along with other food, a daily ration of Grape-Nuts does much toward correcting dietetic faults in both children and adults.

The KITCHEN CABINET

As disasters are sudden, triumphs are unexpected. The spirit of victory is as rapid as the genius of ruin. To get up and go on when you're knocked down is to get somewhere.—Charles Sandberg.

THE DELICIOUS RAISIN.

In days of old the popular superstition in regard to raisins was that if eaten raw they caused fits in children. This idea still clings to many, as you occasionally read an article which says not to feed raisins to children.

Small children should not eat any tough skinned fruit as they do not masticate it and it might cause digestive disturbances, but after the child has teeth and is taught to use them properly there can be no reason that a few raisins now and then should not be a benefit.

Raisins have a decided medicinal value, as they have a laxative effect, but for those who have trouble in digesting them they are best steamed or cooked in bread, when the skin is softened and made easier of mastication.

The English people should teach us the proper value of the raisin as they eat six pounds per capita while we eat one.

Raisin Sandwiches.—Chop fine one cupful of raisins with a cupful of nuts, pecans or walnuts, mix with whipped cream, a dash of salt and spread on thin slices of buttered bread. Prepare only a short while before serving and the raisins are better and more digestible if steamed before using.

Raisins with bread and butter make the finest kind of a lunch when traveling, and are always ready to take.

A delicious little cake to serve with tea in the afternoon is the marguerite. Take small round wafers and heap on them the whipped white of an egg, with two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, a tablespoonful of chopped nuts and two of chopped raisins steamed. Put into the oven and bake until well puffed up and brown.

Raisin pie is so delicious we should serve it often and it is not more expensive than many ordinary pie fillings. Stir together a cupful of water, a tablespoonful of cornstarch and a cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the grated rind of a lemon, the juice, and a cupful of chopped raisins. Cook this until smooth and thick, cool, then bake with two crusts.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAR. 15, 1916.

From the street improvement work carried on in Ellenville, described elsewhere in The Freeman, one fact which stands forth prominently is the care exercised in providing for future repair or improvement. A concrete pavement was laid on one of the principal streets in such a way that it will be possible to lay a brick pavement on the concrete bed when the latter has become worn out, and thus secure a new pavement at slight cost. The concrete pavement may last for many years. Its life of usefulness will depend largely on the care used in construction. Honest construction lengthens the life of any road or street, for which reason many miles of state highways which should have stood up under the ordinary usage they receive have gone to pieces almost before the contractors were paid. The work in Ellenville appears to have been performed honestly and well, and in addition to that commendable condition someone was sufficiently farsighted to make provision for the future. Most public works are conducted to meet immediate needs and no thought of the future enters into the plans. That is one reason why the cost of government becomes heavier. Temporary makeshifts never pay. What is greatly needed in public work is more conscientious thought and effort and less politics, more work and less bluster. A noted jurist in charging an Ulster county grand jury a number of years ago confined his remarks largely to the axiom that "Honesty is the best policy," pointing out that he would not enter into ethical or moral discussion why honesty should prevail but would view the matter only from the standpoint of policy, because that was all the proverb did. Though moral considerations may be cast aside, there yet remains the proposition of policy, and the government whether large or small, whether of large proportions or an inconsiderable subdivision, which conducts its affairs of the present as well as making plans for the future in the light of honest reason does not go far wrong in its ultimate accomplishments and serves in fact the purpose for which philosophers and demagogues alike must agree it was created.

Formerly France was considered the most polite nation on earth, but recent events indicate that the palm should be accorded to the United States, and the center of politeness should be Washington. Who better than the United States has followed the Biblical admonition, also, in regard to turning the other cheek after one side of the face has been struck? For three years a serious situation has been brewing in Mexico and we have been preparing to meet it, but so gentlemanly and polite has been the measured tread of government that not even peace advocates of the Bryan type can find reasonable ground for complaint. The movement of the United States Army since the beginning of the Mexican troubles has more nearly resembled the preparations of our forefathers for dancing the minuet after partaking of a hearty meal than military maneuvers. So long as the "Spirit of '76" prevails in America, we have been told, our country will be safe from foreign foe as well as strife within our bounds. From the state of unpreparedness in which the Army now finds itself the "Spirit of '76" appears to have been metamorphosed into the "Spirit of Rip Van Winkle." For his daring invasion of American territory and the ruthless slaughter of American citizens we are to "Take Villa dead or alive." Now that we realize it is time for action it may be that we really intend to attain that object, but our innate national politeness requires that we wait a sufficient length of time to permit the Mexican bandit to die a natural death from the diseases to which old age is heir.

We do not want preparedness of the Prussian military stripe, we are not longing to carry a chip on our shoulder, we may even be willing to allow the man who smites us on one cheek to smite the other also, but when we know he is killing our family and getting ready to deal us a body blow, wisdom fails to dictate a policy of such absurd politeness that we stand still with bowed head and closed eyes awaiting the blow while we softly murmur apologies for having excited his anger. If we maintain even a small army, why should it not be effective for the work it is expected to perform? The trouble with our army and navy lies in lack of appreciation of its duties in times of peace, which naturally leads to ignorance when the crisis comes. Promotion appears to be based on a career of inoffensive and conventional action governed by pacifism, brotherly love and politeness. The officer who dares to point out defects becomes a muckraker and is relegated to the background where he can do no harm to the dreams of well-meaning but impractical old ladies of both sexes who occupy positions in official as well as private life. Such men should be relegated to dungeons and other dark places. If not, they might want to fight. A troop of United States Cavalry on guard on the Mexican border for the precise purpose of watching for raiders was surprised while in camp three miles from the border by Villa with a band of 2,000 Mexicans. Should the policeman who sleeps on his beat be punished after that?

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Advertisement—"Lost—Walking stick by gentleman with an ivory head."—Boston Transcript.

"Marriage is a lottery," remarked the cynic. "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "Only in a lottery you can tear the ticket up and forget about it."—Washington Star.

The Girl—"You say that Miss Paddy and Jack Pott are going to be married. Why, I didn't know they knew each other." The Cynic—"They don't. That's why they are going to be married."—Boston Transcript.

"Are you going to make a professional man of your boy Josh?" "Yes," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "He's got to do something that'll give him a chance of gettin' by by sittin' still an' lookin' like he was tinkin'."—Washington Star.

Husband—"Now, then, what are our needs?" Wife—"Well, the house needs painting, we are all out of kitchen utensils, the dining room rug is threadbare, the bathroom must be decorated and I've simply had to order some clothes."—Judge.

"Willie," cried Willie's mother, "come right in the house this very minute and go to work on your arithmetic." "No, ma," returned Willie, "I want to grow up a law-abiding citizen, and the Pennsylvania Legislature has just passed a law forbidding child labor."—Life.

As Mike Took It.
Mike Gilligan entered a police office and intimated that some abominable thief had stolen his watch. It was a valuable watch, but, more than that, it had been given to Michael by his father back in County Clare. He told a very stirring story about his loss. The officer at the desk was very much impressed.

"We'll leave no stone unturned to find your watch, Mr. Gilligan," he said.
"Thank ye, sir," said Mike. "It was a fine watch." And Mr. Gilligan went home and then found his watch. It had slipped from beneath the pillow and in some way landed beneath the sheets. He hurried back to the police office to report the fact and save the police further trouble. On the way he came across a gang of laborers tearing up the road for sewer purposes.

"Hi, boys," called Mike. "Leave them stones alone; don't turn any more. I've found my watch."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

George Luks, the New York painter, attended a studio tea in Washington Square the other day. Mr. Luks, like all conscientious artists, gives no praise except sincere praise, and hence praise from him is valued. None fell from his lips, however, at the studio tea in question. The host, a rich sculptor, finally led Mr. Luks to a statuette of a dancing faun, and said, desperately: "Come come, Luks, admit that this is at least tolerable?" "My dear fellow," the artist drawled, "what is your opinion of a tolerable egg?"—New York Tribune.

To Ease Her Mind.

The nurse was writing a letter for a wounded soldier.
"There's something I'd like you to put in, miss," said the soldier, hesitatingly.
"Well, what is it?"
"You won't mind now? Just put 'The nurses in this hospital are all rather elderly persons.'"
"That isn't quite true," said the youthful nurse.
"It isn't miss; but it'll ease my missis' mind wonderful. She's always been a bit of the jealous side."
The missis' mind was eased.—Manchester Guardian.

PROGRAM FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Patriotic orders throughout the county and in Kingston have sent enthusiastic responses to the invitations extended to them to attend the patriotic exercises to be held at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church Friday night and a rousing meeting is expected. It will be under the auspices of Washington Camp, No. 30, Patriotic Order Sons of America and Camp No. 2, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the local camp and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Several prominent speakers have been engaged to discuss the subject of patriotism who are well qualified because of their public work. Chaplain Silver of the West Point Military Academy, the principal speaker, is well known to Kingston, having delivered two of the baccalaureate sermons to high school graduating classes and his eloquence and sound wisdom were admired by all of his audience. Although Chaplain Silver finds invitations to speak coming from all parts of the country, he willingly consented to appear at Friday night's exercises and the committee in charge of the affair consider themselves most fortunate in securing him.

Other speakers are Admiral Francis J. Higginson of Kingston, Hon. H. Willard Griffiths, state vice president of the P. O. S. of A. and corporation counsel of Hempstead, L. I., an orator of note, and Monroe Terwilliger, state master of forms of the order.

An attractive musical program has been arranged and will be in charge of E. F. Kuehn, organist of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. The choir and male quartet of the church will render selections, which will intersperse the speeches.

The complete program follows: Organ—Grand Chorus in A.....—Salome Invocation—Rev. George M. Cranston, pastor of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. Hymn—America.....

Greeting from the presiding officer. Address—Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, U. S. N., retired. Battle Hymn of the Republic..... Chorus Choir and Male Quartet. Address—Hon. H. Willard Griffiths Hymn by audience—Star Spangled Banner. Address—Chaplain H. Percy Silver of U. S. Military Academy. Hymn—Our Native Land..... Male Quartet Address—Monroe Terwilliger. #### EDDYVILLE.

Eddyville, March 15.—The death of Miss Louise Schick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schick, of East Chester street, Kingston, was a great shock and grief to this community at large, as this place was the home town of her childhood days. She was loved and esteemed by all who knew her, and will be greatly missed. We extend our sympathy to her parents in this, their sad bereavement.

A cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Tooker on Wednesday evening of this week. All are welcome.

On Sunday evening, March 19, there will be a union service held at the M. E. Church, at which time the Christian Endeavor Society of St. Remy will unite with the Epworth League of this place. All are cordially invited to attend.

Alfred Menzel spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Zeaman, in this place.

Henry Tooker spent the week end with his family in this place. His little son, Kenneth, accompanied him to Waterbury, Conn.

H. Seales is spending a few days at his home here.

Mrs. Arthur LeFevre is ill. Her many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Miss Sarah Burger, who has been ill, is somewhat better at this writing.

Mrs. H. Van Wagenen is better, after a period of illness.

Many people of this place attended the funeral of Miss Louise Schick at Kingston on Monday.

A party of about fifty people enjoyed a sleigh ride to Port Ewen Friday evening, when they gave their pastor, the Rev. Eugene Bookhout, a very delightful surprise. Many enjoyable games, songs and recitations were indulged in, and at midnight a dainty repast was served. In the early hours of the morning the party left for home, all voting Mr. and Mrs. Bookhout royal entertainers.

Catholics Given Dispensation.

Cardinal Farley has received a cable message from Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of state at the Vatican, stating that Pope Benedict XV. has granted a special dispensation to all the Roman Catholics in the diocese of New York relieving them from fasting next Friday, because it is the Feast of St. Patrick. Announcement of this was made in all Catholic churches at each mass Sunday. As Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of this week are Ember Days, Wednesday and Saturday will be days of fasting, but Friday will be like Sundays in Lent.

Always consult an architect —he is a "clearing house" of building experiences

Just as you respect the vast amount of work and care it has taken for you to succeed in your business, so you should respect the architect in his business. As an originator and a "clearing house" of building ideas and experiences—gained from putting up many buildings, also from studying the trend of building laws and future needs of housekeeping, he arranges the building so that it shall later suit other folks in case you sell or rent.

Why architecture depends upon comfort

You may build in the joyous Spring-time or Summer, and think only of porches and screens, but the architect always keeps before him a vision of the grim Winter Kings. He knows that when the bitter cold days come, any occupied building will be a failure that is not cleanly, healthfully, genially warmed by coal-economizing radiator heating. These outfits change houses into homes, change barn-like stores into pleasant shops!

Wherein architects save heating costs

The architect will more than earn his fee by alone making the radiator heating outfit cost you nothing, through omitting from the plans the extra chimneys, needless mantels, useless inner doors, double window sash, weather strips, storm doors, etc.

Architects study future values for you

Those who build hope for the neighborhood to improve and value to increase. The architect helps you to study keenly the future of the locality. He will prove to you that property modernized with IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators will

No one accepting such large responsibilities charges so little as does the architect—for his is largely a profession of public service. You should therefore take advantage of his "clearing house" of ideas and experiences by consulting him and let him show you at any of our public showrooms the pattern and size of IDEAL Boiler and AMERICAN Radiators that will exactly fit your building needs and which will burn the kind of fuel most abundantly and cheaply available in your locality.

readily command a larger loan from bankers; or, you can sell property quicker and get full money back; or 10% to 15% higher rental and from better satisfied tenants, who stay long.

Proofs of lowest-priced heating

The testimony of a million owners at home and abroad prove the fuel economy. There is absence of repairs—no wearing out—the screwed-tight joints prevent ash-dust and soot damages to furnishings and decorations. These outfits are simplest to run and property earns lowest insurance rate. IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators are the best that money can buy, pay for themselves! Fully guaranteed.

Architects know how this heating pays!

The IDEAL Heating outfit is the only equipment put into a building that will never be worth less than you pay for it, and will repeatedly repay by 100 years of service its original cost, through fuel and labor savings and absence of repairs. Can you possibly invest money better or more safely than this?

WAR DEPARTMENT MUM BUT EXPECTANT

Washington, March 15.—Although there was not the slightest doubt that the Pershing expedition to "get Villa" was well on its way south from the New Mexican border, the war department withheld official announcement early today. There was no mistaking the air of expectancy, however, among the officers on duty. They plainly expected a record dash on the part of the punitive expedition which must engage in a race with the Carranzista soldiers. Confidential advices from the border show that Carranza now has more than half his entire army tracking Villa and his officers are bending every effort to get him before the American forces reach the scene. The censorship over the operations on the border was made absolute today. Because of the danger of attempts to attack American towns or settlements General Funston has spread his men all along the line. At certain places these forces have been made very strong because of secret information conveyed to the war department by the agents of the department of justice. But all information is withheld as to disposition to prevent the news reaching Mexican spies.

It was stated today that the response to the orders to recruit the army to full war strength will probably be the greatest in the states along the border. Nearly every recruiting officer in that section has a long waiting list of eligibles and they will be sent for at once. While awaiting the favorable action of the senate on the Hay resolution granting authority, which passed the house yesterday, the army experts will examine these men, perfect their enlistment papers, and get them ready to start to the recruit bases at once.

There will be no attempt made to drill these men together. Instead all will be sent directly to the border or to army posts where troops now are and incorporated with the well trained units already on duty. In this way the recruits will become immediately available for service as they will be hedged in on every side by men who know the ropes. The result will be that the new men will know the duties of a soldier in far less time than ordinarily is required.

This action in increasing the regular army was done to prevent any calling on the National Guard. The administration has been under the strongest pressure from nearly every state in union to accept at least some of the local troops for action. To make a selection would have proven difficult and at the same time, would have aroused jealousies that might have proven serious later on. As a result the president has decided that until every resource of the regular army has been exhausted, no other steps will be taken. So long as only regulars are moving along the border, the anti-American agitation will not be able to check by Carranza. But if guardsmen go to the front the motive is likely to be understood.

There still are approximately 12,000 coast artillerymen available for field service. These men could be started for the border within 24 hours as their provisional organization has been arranged and their equipment is ready. All that will be needed to get them in motion if they are needed on the border will be the transportation and this now is being made ready.

Meanwhile the activities of "revolutionary promoting brokers" in this country are causing officialdom some concern. Agents of the department of justice are looking for General Felix Diaz, who is reported to have again slipped into this country. The department has heard that he is en route to New York to confer with Mexican leaders there.

The state department expects today an official reply from General Carranza to its telegram of Monday. All replies so far received from representatives in the territory absolutely dominated by Carranza say that there has been no excitement and that the Carranzista officials have a firm grasp on the situation. The trouble so far seems entirely confined to the north and even there have been no serious anti-

American demonstrations. By orders of the state department every consular agent in Mexico is doing his utmost to assure the people regarding the intentions of the United States Secretary Lansing's public statement "on behalf of the president" is being translated into Spanish and spread broadcast.

It is accepted that the situation must remain uncertain for some days. The slightest clash between American and Carranzista troops would cause an explosion that must end in real war. Every effort will be made to avoid this but among the Carranzista commanders who now are actively engaged in the pursuit of Villa are a number noted for their anti-American tendencies. In addition the withdrawal of Carranzista troops from the west coast line has laid many places where there are many Americans open to attack by newly organized bandit aggregations.

Many reports of border clashes were received here today but in every instance the war department was without information and characterized them as "undoubtedly without foundation." While General Funston is in absolute authority and can do as he pleases with the forces under his command in enforcing the order sent to him to "get Villa" it was said that he could be depended on to report directly to the department any fighting that takes place.

General Who Will Get 'Villa, Dead or Alive'

BRIG. GEN. JOHN H. PERSHING.

When Francisco Villa and his Mexican bandits rode across the border at Columbus, N. M., and killed sixteen Americans General Pershing was known to comparatively few Americans outside regular army circles. Now, the order having gone out that Villa must be captured or killed, General Pershing, commanding the expedition that will scour Mexico in pursuit of the outlaw, will write some new pages in American history. He is a determined and efficient soldier and undoubtedly will uphold all the traditions of our army in the field.

SIX MONTHS FOR FURNITURE SWINDLE

Judge Brady, in Albany police court Tuesday, handed out to Samuel Doling a six months' sentence in the Albany penitentiary. Doling was charged by Nellie Franklin, of 88 Myrtle avenue, with conducting a lottery. She alleged that she had been induced to enter a scheme with the Western Grand Rapids Furniture Company, a concern now in bankruptcy, on November 11, 1913, by which she was to pay 25 cents a week until $17.50 was paid in, at which time she was given permission to select any article of furniture, clothing or jewelry to the value of the money paid in, but in the meantime she had a chance to win the furniture or other articles selected after she had paid in the first 25 cents.

A drawing, it is alleged, was made each week and each week the complainant stood a chance of being the lucky winner. Judge Brady had received many complaints against the concern, of which Doling was alleged to be the moving spirit, but it was difficult to get any of the complainants to make a formal charge until Mrs. Franklin appeared with her complaint, and she did not hesitate to make a charge. Assistant District Attorney John Conway conducted the prosecution and Louis F. O'Neil appeared for Doling. O'Neil subsequently filed notice of appeal with Judge Brady and he says he will carry the case to a higher court—Albany Argus.

A number of Kingston people were "stung" the past summer on a similar scheme of joining a "furniture club" and some of them paid in the required $17.50 but did not receive the furniture. It is understood that the concern which organized the local "furniture club" had headquarters in an upstate city.

MANY WERE OUT TO HEAR FATHER PAUL

St. Joseph's Church Crowded Last Night at First of Series of Lenten Sermons—Address on Reunion.

Father Paul, better known in Kingston as the Rev. Lewis T. Watson, delivered the first of a series of Lenten sermons Tuesday night before an audience of 900 persons who crowded St. Joseph's Church. Father Paul preached first at an introductory conference at which his subject was "Is Reunion Possible?" Under this head the speaker treated of the possibility of all religious denominations coming under one head and pictured the position of the Holy Father, the Pope, who he declared to be in hearty accord with such reunion, praying and hoping that some day would see all dissenting beliefs under one religion.

The main topic of the evening was "The Soul and Sin" in which the speaker eloquently presented to his hearers the value of the former and the heinousness of sin. Father Paul will be heard each Tuesday evening at St. Joseph's Church and Christ, of all denominations are invited.

Klines Agree to Settle.

Despite the severe snow storm that raged this morning there was a large number gathered in the corridor of the city hall who had assembled to hear the trial of Sanford H. Kline, on a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, which was slated for trial, but they were disappointed as after a lengthy conference between Mr. and Mrs. Kline and their attorneys, Andrew J. Cook who represented Mrs. Kline and Judge O'Reilly who represented Mr. Kline, a settlement was reached and when the lawyers appeared in recorder's court before Recorder Lang they announced that Mr. Kline had agreed to pay his wife $5 a week and she had agreed to accept that amount. Recorder Lang decided to hold the case open until April 12.

Woman's World

The President's Daughter is an Advocate of Suffrage.

MISS MARGARET WILSON.

Miss Wilson always has been a suffragist at heart, but it was not until last year, after her father had announced his own views on the question of votes for women, that she permitted herself to come out and work for the enfranchisement of her sex. She had for several years attended as a silent spectator all the mass meetings of the suffrage societies. Even now she seldom makes speeches, since she needs to save her voice for her chosen career as a vocal artist.

Recently Miss Wilson was one of the hostesses at a suffrage tea given in New York, where Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the national children's bureau spoke about the relation of suffrage to child welfare. The children's bureau is another one of the humanitarian interests of Miss Wilson, whose unaffected love of humanity has led her to ally herself with many philanthropic movements.

It is said that she always gives the proceeds of her concert money to the work for the blind, for, while she is an enthusiastic lover of her work, she does not sing to enrich herself, but to help mankind.

FANCY HATBANDS IN FAVOR.

Some of the Pretty, Frivolous Things That Appear This Season.

Fancy adjustable hatbands are a feature of the new millinery and appeal to the woman whose longing for variety is hampered by a limited purse. They furnish an excellent means of introducing daring touches of color in an otherwise dark street costume and are adaptable to the stiffest and narrow brimmed models as well as to the soft sports hats of felt and beaver for which they were originally designed.

Plain colored ribbons in the new, bright shades as well as in striped and blocked effects, combining two colors in sharp contrast, are the most used for adjustable hatbands. Many of these are so woven as to pass for hand knitted bands and have a convenient elasticity which makes them easily adjustable to any size crown. Others are of a stiff ribbed silk similar to belting and fasten under the flattest of tailored bows.

Double faced ribbons, showing a dark shade on one side and a vivid coloring on the other, are among the most satisfactory for fancy hatbands, as they are capable of almost endless variety in adjustment.

What About The Teeth?

Statistics that only about 14 out of every 500 New York City school children have sound teeth. Probably similar conditions prevail elsewhere.

There's a Reason! And it lies to a great extent in the demineralized foods that make up the usual diet of children. The body must have its quota of mineral elements—lime for the teeth, iron for the blood, phosphate of potash for the nerves, etc.—or disaster is pretty sure to follow. Many foods—especially white bread—are woefully lacking in these vital mineral elements.

The famous food, Grape-Nuts

is rich in these elements. It is made of whole wheat and malted barley, retaining the mineral salts so abundantly stored in the grain by Nature.

Grape-Nuts is easily digested, appetizing, and highly nourishing. Along with other food, a daily ration of Grape-Nuts does much toward correcting dietetic faults in both children and adults.

United States balanced Tires

At Last— the 'Balanced' Tire

The greatest forward step ever made in pneumatic tires

On January 8th, in the Saturday Evening Post, we announced that at last we had made pneumatic rubber tires more like other dependable articles of merchandise.

Stop and analyze this statement—"more like other dependable articles of merchandise."

Unless backed up by results, it would be almost commercial suicide for tire manufacturer to make such a statement. Now we are ready to tell you the reason for this fearless confidence in our

To be 100 per cent. efficient, a tire must be absolutely 'balanced'—that is, the rubber tread and the fabric carcass of the tire must give equal wear.

'Balance' the tire maker's goal

To have perfect 'balance' the rubber tread must have enough resiliency to absorb road shocks that tend to disintegrate the fabric, and still must have the toughness to give long wear.

Too much toughness reduces resiliency; too much resiliency sacrifices toughness.

Full, complete tire efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of the rubber tread and the fabric carcass—neither may be stronger nor weaker than the other.

This is the goal we have reached

By producing this complete 'balance' between resiliency and toughness in the tread, and between fabric and rubber in the carcass, we have secured 100 per cent. efficiency in United States Individualized Tires, or absolute 'balance'.

Since September, sales have increased steadily month by month up to the recent highest increase of 354 per cent.—this tells the story.

ROAD BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Engineer Clark Describes Work Done in Ellenville With a View to Future Rebuilding at the Least Expense.

"A Concrete Pavement Tamped by Rolling" is the title of an interesting three-page article with illustrations by P. Edwin Clark, the well known civil engineer of Ellenville, in the issue of "Good Roads," published in New York city, for March 4th, which describes the construction of the concrete pavement on Canal street, Ellenville.

The construction of curbs and pavement on Canal street, between Main and Market streets, was authorized by the Ellenville board of trustees in 1914, and concrete was decided on. A survey, plan and profile were ordered, not only for the block to be improved, but for a distance of 2,900 feet, taking in several blocks at each end.

"Canal street," says Mr. Clark, "in the early days was known as a turnpike or plank road, and proof of this was found while excavating for subgrade. For almost the entire length of the pavement the old stringers were found, all rotted, with one exception, which was a piece of hemlock 3 by 6 inches, and about 20 feet long. All of one end and about one-half of the other was in excellent state of preservation. Upon inquiry, it was found that the last of these stringers had been placed in the road about sixty years ago."

After describing the preparation of the road for concrete work, Mr. Clark describes the method of tamping. He says:

"Instead of the ordinary method of hand tamping, a roller was used. This roller consisted of a pipe three inches in inside diameter and 16 feet long, filled with dry sand to give it additional weight. Each end of the pipe was fitted with a long, hard wood plug (made of maple), turned in a lathe so as to give it a close fit. The outside end of the plug was grooved and fitted with a handle made of 3/4 inch round iron."

"The concrete was dumped from wheelbarrows, one man spreading it, using a long handled shovel for that purpose. As fast as spread it was thoroughly rolled with the pipe roller, worked by two men, one at each end."

It was found that by continuous rolling for a short time, all air bubbles were forced out as well as all excess water, which was carried ahead. This was accomplished by rolling back and forth across the pavement and at different times lifting the roller clear of the concrete, carrying it back to the curb and then rolling toward the concrete last placed. This kept all of the excess water away from the curb and mixed it with the freshly dumped batch. As soon as the concrete had set, sand was spread over the top to a depth of about one inch, and kept thoroughly wet for ten days, then allowed to dry out. The result of this method is a very solid and practically impervious pavement."

Transverse expansion joints were left every 30 feet, the expansion joint filler being protected on each side by a row of Dunn wire-cut-lug bricks, and under these transverse joints for a distance of at least eight inches on each side and a depth of three inches below the subgrade, an additional thickness of concrete was placed.

The first section was contracted for by the village, which furnished and delivered all materials. The Thompson-Wooster Contracting Company of Walden furnished all tools, forms, mixer and labor, on the following basis: Pavement, 45 cents per square yard; curb, 30 cents per lineal foot.

The second section was built by Jacob Weber, a local contractor; the village furnished all material and the use of a 10-ton gasoline roller, the contractor furnishing the fuel and the engineer to operate the roller. The excavation for this work was made by the contractor who bid 58 cents per cubic yard for all excavation measured in place, including rolling and bringing subgrade to its required shape; 30 cents per square yard for concrete pavement, and 30 cents per lineal foot for curb.

The total cost of pavement under the second contract, including engineering, inspection, assessment list and all other expenses, was $1.34 per square yard. The cost of crushed stone was high, due principally to unsatisfactory steam drills, poor facilities for transporting rock from quarry face to crusher, and inadequate storage facilities.

The height of curb was established at 10 1/2 inches. "This was done," says Mr. Clark, "in order to provide for future repair or improvement to be laid upon the worn-out concrete surface. By using the present concrete for a sub-base and putting in a cement filler under the brick instead of sand, a new pavement would be secured at a small cost."

In conclusion, he says: "The pavement laid under the first contract has had one year's wear, consisting of mixed traffic, both heavy and light, automobiles and teams. It is to be noted that under these conditions the pavement as yet shows no sign of wear. Some of the 3-foot sections show a slight straight-line crack where the 15-foot curb was removed, while in other sections no cracks or any other lines have so far appeared."

Scene of Villa's Repulse by American Troops

ARMY CAMP AT COLUMBUS, NEW MEXICO.

This is the scene of Villa's murderous attack on American citizens and soldiers at Columbus, N. M., where nine civilians and six troopers were killed before the outlaws were driven from the town.

In the foreground are the tents of the United States soldiers comprising the border guard at this point, while in the background at the left are seen some of the houses of the town, from which citizens were dragged by the brigands to be shot or burned.

Monument of Skulls.

The Turks, when they defeated the Serbs in 1809, erected at Nish a rough tower composed alternately of lumps of rocks and Serb skulls cemented together. Of the 1,500 or so skulls originally included, all except one, which was too firmly embedded in the mortar, have been carried away by unsentimental curiosity seekers.

Explaining "Tabby Cat."

Few people are aware that the name "tabby cat" owes its origin to a famous street of Bagdad, chiefly occupied by the manufacture of the silk-stuffs called Atabi, our taffeta. The wavy markings of the watered silk resemble pussy's coat, and this is how "tabby" came into use as a common expression.

Feathered Alarm Clocks.

A fashion note recommending peacocks as a suitable gift to a family having a formal garden betrays the writer's ignorance of the beautiful jirre utie uses to which the fancy bird usually feels moved at 4 a. m. of the year. The suitability of this gift depends entirely on the garden's proximity to the house.

THE QUEER HINDUS

They Rival the Chinese in Their
Odd Ideas and Customs.

CASTE RULES THE SERVANT.

He Doesn't Like Work, Anyhow, and
Generally Finds a Way to Dodge It.
Playing the Stringed Vina is a Specie
of Unmusical Torture.

I had thought China was a queer place and that the Chinese had queer customs, but China can't entertain on the same afternoon with India. If some one had told me about their manners and customs before I got to India I would have laughed courteously and set him down in my little book. There are some things that a Hindu will do and some that he will not do. Work is regarded prominently on the latter list. One thing that a Hindu will not do is to play on a flute. He would rather go to the dogging post than dash off a section on a flute. But he will play a stringed instrument, called a vina, similar to the instrument played by David in the tent of Saul. This instrument looks as if it had originally been intended for a carpet stretcher, but had fallen into the hands of a musically inclined person who had borrowed a couple of piano wires and was determined to lower rents. After hearing an able-bodied Hindu pick on an instrument of this kind one can't help wishing that they would put it in the same class with the flute.

A Hindu's idea of music is to make all the noise he can. He doesn't care anything about rime or rhythm. All his energy is expended in volume. Hindu musicians are all large, splendidly muscled fellows, who play as if they were going to a gymnasium regularly. When one hears them playing a vina one can't help wondering how David ever came to make such an impression on Saul.

As soon as I got to India I hired a valet. It sounds mighty big—until you know what you have to pay a "boy" in India. A servant is called a "boy" even though he has whiskers and grandchildren. He said that his name was Thumbo Ramalingum, or words to that effect. I couldn't remember the last consonant, so I called him Thumbo, and for days I longed to ask if there was a Finger in his family. He wore a skirt and a sheet twisted around his head. He was to be my waiter, for in India you have to furnish your own table boy. When you go to spend a day or two with a friend you always take your own boy along to wait on you. My boy was to mend my clothes, black my shoes, get my bath water ready and hold my shirt. The way he talked I wasn't to do anything except open my mail, put my feet on the table and enjoy life. But I soon found out that his idea and mine differed quite widely as to what enjoyment of life was.

A few minutes before the first meal he suddenly appeared, a bit flushed, and explained that he was of too high caste to wait on table. I tried to show him that it was an honor to be a good and efficient table waiter, but he wouldn't budge a step—he'd rather starve than wait on table. So I had to look around and hustle up another boy to do that part of the work. Every time I wanted him to do anything it was against his caste. His caste seemed to have a special enmity toward all work. When I wanted him to carry my bags he begged leave to be excused, as his caste didn't allow him to do such menial work, and when I gave him my shoes to be blacked he looked at me in horror. It was expressly against his caste to touch leather—a product of the sacred cow.

One day when I told him to pick the hairs out of my brush he looked at me sadly and then began to tell me about a nephew that had suddenly departed this flesh and would be so kind as to give half a rupee to the grief-stricken father and the other half to the innumerable uncle. That was more than I could stand, and on the spot I told him that he was discharged, fired, and to get out as fast as he could.

"Thank you, sahib, thank you," said Thumbo with a profound salute. I told him that he needn't thank me for firing him, but he only bowed his head and thanked me more profoundly than ever. His gratitude was as pronounced as if I had given him a rupee.

"Will you give me a recommendation kindly for the good boy I have been, sahib?"

After what a poor servant he had been, that was the last straw. It would be underhanded to foist him off on somebody else, and then suddenly I saw a way out. "Yes," I agreed enthusiastically, and I wrote for him.

The bearer of this note with the unpronounceable name has been in my employ for two weeks. During this time I have aged perceptibly. He is a servant of caste, but he never lets work interfere with his caste. When he came to me he was a man of family, but at the rate which his family has been depleted I doubt if he has left more than enough children to last out a week. You will find him especially good at getting your shirt studs in backward and at pulling off the tips of your shoestrings.

Thumbo, who made pretense of being an English scholar, read the recommendation carefully, but his mastery of words was such that he could not quite follow the meaning.

"Thank you, sahib, thank you," he said, too proud to admit that it was not clear to him. "It will be of great help to me."

"And to the other fellow, too," I said as he saluted and passed out of my life.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

DARCY LEADS THEM ALL IN VICTORIES

Les Darcy, Australian Marvel.

Les Darcy, the sensational Australian middleweight, won more fights in 1915 than any other fighter of prominence in the world. He had 13 bouts and won 12. His only defeat was by Jeff Smith, whom he beat twice later. Darcy's victories included two knockouts over Eddie McGorty and a decision over Jimmy Clabby, which gives him a good claim to the middleweight championship.

Charley White runs second in victories with ten, nine of which were knockouts. He also boxed seven no-decision bouts and one draw. Bat Levinsky had the most fights—28. He won one, lost one, boxed one draw and 25 no-decision bouts. The record of Freddy Welsh, lightweight champion, is a joke. He was in 19 bouts and all were no-decision affairs. Freddy refused to risk his title.

The same goes for Jess Willard, heavyweight champion. He was in the ring once in 1915 and that was when he won the title. The records of the leading performers are as follows:

READY FOR EASTERN REGATTA

Stanford University Eight Hard at Work Preparing for Big Event at Poughkeepsie.

Brimful of confidence inspired by their showing at Poughkeepsie last season, the Stanford University eight, the California Giants, are hard at work preparing for the big event to be held at Poughkeepsie next June. Western rowing experts entertain the opinion that the Cardinal crew, with the experience gained last season, will be more formidable. The ship's company which lost to Cornell only by an eyelash will be practically intact. Bill Bloesser, a victim of the five-year rule, will be the only absentee.

A coaching launch capable of making 17 miles an hour has been installed for the use of Guernsey and will facilitate his work in polishing up the Cardinal oarsmen. As Stanford has been invited to participate again in the eastern regatta, whether it wins the coast title or not, a strenuous effort will be made to include the coast title in the Stanford's crew luggage when it goes east. The entire university has been aroused to enthusiasm and determination over Stanford's showing on its first trip into foreign territory.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAR. 15, 1916.

From the street improvement work carried on in Ellenville, described elsewhere in The Freeman, one fact which stands forth prominently is the care exercised in providing for future repair or improvement. A concrete pavement was laid on one of the principal streets in such a way that it will be possible to lay a brick pavement on the concrete bed when the latter has become worn out, and thus secure a new pavement at slight cost. The concrete pavement may last for many years. Its life of usefulness will depend largely on the care used in construction. Honest construction lengthens the life of any road or street, for which reason many miles of state highways which should have stood up under the ordinary usage they receive have gone to pieces almost before the contractors were paid. The work in Ellenville appears to have been performed honestly and well, and in addition to that commendable condition someone was sufficiently far-sighted to make provision for the future. Most public works are conducted to meet immediate needs and no thought of the future enters into the plans. That is one reason why the cost of government becomes heavier. Temporary makeshifts never pay. What is greatly needed in public work is more conscientious thought and effort and less politics, more work and less bluster. A noted jurist in charging an Ulster county grand jury a number of years ago confined his remarks largely to the axiom that "honesty is the best policy," pointing out that he would not enter into ethical or moral discussion why honesty should prevail but would view the matter only from the standpoint of policy, because that was all the proverb did. Though moral considerations may be cast aside, there yet remains the proposition of policy, and the government, whether large or small, whether of large proportions or an inconsiderable subdivision, which conducts its affairs of the present as well as making plans for the future in the light of honest reason does not go far wrong in its ultimate accomplishments and serves in fact the purpose for which philosophers and demagogues alike must agree it was created.

Formerly France was considered the most polite nation on earth, but recent events indicate that the palm should be accorded to the United States, and the center of politeness should be Washington. Who better than the United States has followed the Biblical admonition, also, in regard to turning the other cheek after one side of the face has been struck? For three years a serious situation has been brewing in Mexico and we have been preparing to meet it, but so gentlemanly and polite has been the measured tread of government that not even peace advocates of the Bryan type can find reasonable ground for complaint. The movement of the United States Army since the beginning of the Mexican troubles has more nearly resembled the preparations of our forefathers for dancing the minuet after partaking of a hearty meal than military maneuvers. So long as the "Spirit of '76" prevails in America, we have been told, our country will be safe from foreign foe as well as strife within our bounds. From the state of unpreparedness in which the Army now finds itself the "Spirit of '76" appears to have been metamorphosed into the "Spirit of Rip Van Winkle." For his daring invasion of American territory and the ruthless slaughter of American citizens we are to "Take Villa dead or alive." Now that we realize it is time for action it may be that we really intend to attain that object, but our innate national politeness requires that we wait a sufficient length of time to permit the Mexican bandit to die a natural death from the diseases to which old age is heir.

We do not want preparedness of the Prussian military stripe, we are not longing to carry a chip on our shoulder. We may even be willing to allow the man who smites us on one cheek to smite the other also, but when we know he is killing our family and getting ready to deal us a body blow, wisdom fails to dictate a policy of such absurd politeness that we stand still with bowed head and closed eyes awaiting the blow while we softly murmur apologies for having excited his anger. If we maintain even a small army, why should it not be effective for the work it is expected to perform? The trouble with our army and navy lies in lack of appreciation of its duties in times of peace, which naturally leads to ignorance when the crisis comes. Promotion appears to be based on a career of inoffensive and conventional action governed by pacifism, brotherly love and politeness. The officer who dares to point out defects becomes a muckraker and is relegated to the background where he can do no harm to the dreams of well-meaning but impractical old ladies of both sexes who occupy positions in official as well as private life. Such men should be relegated to dungeons and other dark places. If not, they might want to fight. A troop of United States Cavalry on guard on the Mexican border for the precise purpose of watching for raiders was surprised while in camp three miles from the border by Villa with a band of 2,000 Mexicans. Should the policeman who sleeps on his beat be punished after that?

As Mike Took It.
Mike Gilligan entered a police office and intimated that some abominable thief had stolen his watch. It was a valuable watch, but, more than that, it had been given to Michael by his father back in County Clare. He told a very stirring story about his loss. The officer at the desk was very much impressed.

"We'll leave no stone unturned to find your watch, Mr. Gilligan," he said.

"Thank ye, sir," said Mike. "It was a fine watch." And Mr. Gilligan went home and then found his watch. It had slipped from beneath the pillow and in some way landed beneath the sheets. He reported the fact to the police office further trouble. On the way he came across a gang of laborers tearing up the road for sewer purposes.

Smash in China

In the busy calendar of merchandise this is china sale time. The stores present unusual opportunities to replenish the china closet—frequently making price concessions.

This particular impulse to buy at this season has been built up by recurring advertising. People have been educated to watch their newspaper for the opportunities and many are at this very minute instinctively turning to the advertising columns of The Freeman.

COUNTRY ROADS ARE BLOCKADED

The spring blizzard which began during last night and continued throughout the day made many of the country roads impassable but in Kingston the conditions while not agreeable were not serious.

The most badly drifted roads in this vicinity were those leading out of town. The Hurley road and Lucas turnpike which became badly drifted during the last storm, were practically impassable, and a message from Hurley early this morning notified Miss M. Katherine Reed and Miss Annette M. Rudnikski of this city, who are teachers in the Hurley school, not to attempt to get there as it was doubtful if they would be able to get through the road on account of the drifts. The Rosendale road also became badly drifted during the night, and travel was difficult. The Saugerties road was not in bad shape because there are but few places where drifts can form, but the road to West Hurley was blocked at an early hour.

The amount of snowfall was comparatively slight, but the snow had a way of filling in the crevices of the car tracks so that trolley travel at times was slow. The snow plow was kept busy all day and the trolley cars were not much delayed.

Railroad men realize that the storm had great possibilities for tying up the roads if the snow and wind continue for the night. The lightness of the snow makes it easy for drifts to form, and while the trains have been delayed only a few minutes today, it is possible that they may be tied up if the storm continues for any length of time, or if it increases in violence.

Spring is scheduled to arrive next Monday afternoon at five minutes before six o'clock and will be given a hearty welcome by nearly all Kingstonians. Just what sort of a reception will be given by the weather-man has not been indicated.

LOW PRICES FOR SUTTON FARMS

Ulster county farm property, situated in the town of Plattekill, four miles west of Marlborough and on the highway leading from Plattekill to Marlborough, sold at low prices at auction at the court house this morning, when William Beck of Saugerties, as auctioneer, sold two farms owned by the estate of Hiram Sutton of Plattekill to close the estate. The sale took place under the direction of Marvan J. Sutton and John K. Sutton, the executors, and has been billed for some time. The storm undoubtedly prevented some bidders from reaching Kingston, but there was a large crowd present.

The first farm sold contains 50 acres, a house, barn and other buildings and bidding was started by Judge Van Etten at $250. After going by $5 bids to $370 it was sold to Charles H. Sutton. A 10-acre wood lot adjoining the farm was also sold to Mr. Sutton for $15, the only other bid having been $10.

Adjoining the first farm sold is another farm owned by the estate, containing 100 acres, with a 4-acre tract adjoining. This farm also contains a house, barn and other buildings. The house was built 16 years ago for $2,200 and last summer was put in complete repair, including a new roof. Bidding started at $250 and went by $25 raises to $300, after which it was raised by $5 to $310 bids to $700, at which price it was sold to Chairman William S. Hartshorn, of the board of supervisors.

Her mother's quartet, consisting of Mrs. William Isenman, Mrs. Ollie Crispell, Mrs. C. Davis, Mrs. R. Hess, rendered that beautiful selection entitled, "When It's Time To Go You Must Go." And indeed it sure was a hit. The McCreery family, assisted by Mrs. S. L. Torrey, favored with selections on piano, violin and marionettes and was also loudly applauded. Mr. and Mrs. Black and Mr. and Mrs. Hess, with their rapid-fire stories, were also a hit. The feature attraction was Lena Gilderleeve in terpsichorean art. Her dance of the Seven Veils was beautiful. She said she could do more but she ran out of veils, and her feet were not just right, she having a slight attack of elephantitis. Just before the departure of the guests Ollie Crispell in behalf of all present, presented to Mrs. Titus Longendyke a beautiful pearl necklace and to T. Longendyke a very pretty stick pin.

In Memoriam.
At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Old Ulster Guard held in the State Armory, March 13th, a special committee was appointed to draft resolutions in honor of the death of Captain A. Wesley Thompson. Captain Aaron Wesley Thompson has answered the call for assembly in the field where the sword of man is forever sheathed. In the passing of this loyal citizen and comrade the Old Ulster Guard loses one of its charter members. He was instrumental in bringing about the organization of the Old Ulster Guard. We stand at attention with reversed arms and muffled drums giving out last salute to one we respect and whose judgment we valued and whose military ability was evident.

Captain Thompson was a good soldier. He enlisted in the 14th Separate Co. April 19th, 1887, as a private, made Corporal April 5th, 1888, Sergeant January 4th, 1890; First Sergeant March 13th, 1890; Second Lieutenant September 22nd, 1890; and elected Captain of the Company August 11th, 1892. Honorably discharged May 22d, 1893. He re-enlisted in the 14th Separate Company as a private May 12th, 1895, elected Captain May 12th, 1895. Honorably discharged August 10th, 1898.

In his active business career he found time and inclination to do his duty to his country. He did not shirk this duty nor shift it to other shoulders. He felt he owed something more to his country than eloquent words, for the protection and liberty it assured him. We, his comrades, feel his loss, deeply regret his untimely death, and will ever cherish his memory as a worthy citizen, a trustworthy friend, a good neighbor and a loyal soldier.

Rare Chinese Vase Held at $50,000

$50,000 VASE AND MISS AH OY CHAU.

It may seem that $50,000 is a ridiculous price to ask for one vase, but when that particular piece of bric-a-brac is the big brother of a seven-inch specimen for which J. P. Morgan paid $28,000, it must be admitted that the price is likely to be realized. The vase is the property of a Chinese merchant in California, and is to be sent to New York for sale.

An idea of the size of this wonderful example of Chinese art may be obtained by comparing it with another product of China, little Miss Ah Oy Chau.

RELATIVES IN LAW.

A Little Advice That May Help to Make Things Pleasant.

If I were giving counsel to the husband and wife who would make each other happy and hold each other's love I would suggest that neither call the attention of the other to the disagreeable qualities of the family of either.

"My husband loves my people as if they were his own," a wife told me. "It makes me so happy!"

I doubt if he did love her people very dearly, but he overlooked those characteristics which a more selfish man would have resented. If it was what a schoolboy would call a "bluff" it was a gloriously unselfish one.

Most of us can stand the tempers and idiosyncrasies of our own when we alone have to bear them. It is when we see them through the eyes of a third person that they become unendurable. That is perhaps one reason why so few roofs are large enough to cover two families.

If each "in-law" exercised toward the members of the household into which he or she married the same pardoning love that is exercised toward one's own the aspersions cast upon the mother-in-law would die a natural death because they would have nothing on which to feed—Virginia Terhune Van de Water in Mother's Magazine.

WHIRLIGIG BEETLES.

These Four Eyed, Six Legged Creatures Are Expert Swimmers.

More than likely you have watched him skating in "figures 8's" and all sorts of elaborate designs in quiet pools along a stream or on the edge of a lake. He will turn this way and that, describing one graceful curve after another, and then start off in a straight line when he's frightened. He's speedy, as well as graceful. He's the whirligig beetle.

He has six legs, two longer ones in front and two pairs of short, flat paddles behind. These paddles make him an expert swimmer. His front legs, stretched out, look like arms. Nature was also generous in giving him two pairs of eyes. With one pair he looks at objects on top of the water, and with the other pair he keeps watch for prey on the bottom.

There are something less than 300 species of whirligig beetles and they're scattered in all parts of the world. All summer you'll see their shiny bodies skimming in spiral tracks and in curves on the surface of pools and sluggish streams—Philadelphia North American.

Cheats and the Green Bag.
Very few of our lawyers carry the green bags which were once a badge of that profession. "I think the sight of such a bag once kept Joseph H. Choate from coming to Philadelphia to make a speech," Mr. Conlen said.

Mr. Conlen and another lawyer had gone to New York to invite the ex-ambassador to England to deliver an address in Philadelphia. Mr. Conlen's companion carried a green bag, which he laid upon Mr. Choate's table, evidently to the great lawyer's annoyance.

"What do you carry in that thing?" he asked.

"I have some law books," the young Philadelphia attorney replied.

"When I was a young lawyer," Mr. Choate said rather coldly, "I was taught to carry my law in my head." And the invitation was declined.—Philadelphia Ledger.

It is good discretion not to take too much of any man at the first, because one cannot hold out that proportion.—Bacon.

War Strain at Berlin Too Much for Gerard

JAMES W. GERARD.

Ambassador James W. Gerard, American envoy to the German Court, is expected to reach America within a short time to rest. Ever since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe Mr. Gerard has been at his post, and finally the strain has begun to tell upon him. Secretary of State Lansing, appreciating the terrific difficulties that Mr. Gerard has met and overcome, virtually has insisted that the Ambassador return to his native land for a vacation of at least a few weeks.

Road Time Near.

With the advent of spring the big wholesale houses and other large business concerns are beginning to send men out on the road canvassing and drumming and selling for them.

This means that there will be from this month of March on through the year until fall, a big demand for such salesmen and, if you are in the market for such a job, get busy reading The Freeman Want Columns at once, for it is there you will find the good offers in this line.

You will get the place you want much more quickly too if you will run a Want Ad of your own, while you keep your eye open for jobs offered in The Freeman wants.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, March 15.—The baseball war affected Roger Bresnahan in this way; it made it possible for him to earn $20,000 for one season's work in the majors and then it greased the chutes so that he could slide easily into the soft position as owner of a minor league club at a bargain figure.

Quite frequently of late some of our sob producing brothers have painted a sad, sad picture of "Rajah"—one that depicted him as an innocent victim of the "cruel" war. But those who wept for Bresnahan have wasted their tears.

Here are the facts in the Bresnahan case. When the 1914 season ended "Rajah" merely was a player drawing $6,000 a year. Had there been no war, it is likely that his salary for 1915 and 1916 would have been shaved down. As to 1917—well, by that time "Rajah" would have been nearing his 38th year and the chances are he would have been headed toward the minors.

"Rajah" Got His Price.

However Bresnahan's salary for 1915, 1916 and 1917 probably would not have averaged over $4,000—a total of $12,000 for three years' labor. That's what he'd have gathered in had there been no war. But there was a war. And "Rajah" was "victimized" in this way:

"The Feds" flirted with him but in the end "Rajah" remained "faithful" to organized baseball—for a price. The price was the management of the Cubs and a three year iron-clad contract—said to have been dictated by Bresnahan—calling for a salary of $10,000 per year.

"Rajah" got his $10,000 last season—and then came peace. Joe Tinker deposed Bresnahan as manager of the Cubs but "Rajah" isn't worrying, because as the price for tearing up that contract he got $10,000 in cash, became a free agent, and had everything arranged so that he could buy the Toledo franchise in the American Association for little more than it cost for a sack of "makins."

$20,000 for one year's work—and the chance to buy a club that ought to pay some big dividends each year. That's how Bresnahan suffered because of the war. Poor old "Rajah!"

Has Played 21 Years.

Bresnahan is one of the real veterans of the national game—but the fact that has been generally overlooked. The 1915 season marked the end of his 21st year as a professional and "Rajah" insists that he still retains two or three years of first class baseball in his system. "Rajah's" history is unique. He was born in Ireland in 1880 and came here when a boy. He mastered baseball at a very tender age and showed such great promise as an amateur pitcher that he was given a tryout in 1896—when 16 years old—with the Lima, Ohio, team.

The following season he joined the Washington Club, then in the National League. He pitched for that outfit in '97 and '98 but only with fair success and at the end of '98 he was turned over to Minneapolis. In 1900 he was recalled by the Cubs and from then on he became a big league fixture.

Converted Into Catcher.

The Cub manager, however, wasn't impressed with "Rajah's"

LOOKING FOR WORK

Everywhere men complain about work; even boys and girls in school or business find work tedious and irksome, but it isn't the work half so much as their own lack of physical strength that makes it hard.

Rich blood, strong lungs and healthful digestion make work pleasurable in business, in school or even housework, and if those who are easily tired—who are not sick, but weak and nervous—would just take Scott's Emulsion for one month and let its pure concentrated food create richer blood to pulsate through every artery and vein—let it build a structure of healthy tissue and give you vigorous strength—you would find work easy and would look for more. Insist on Scott's.

Scott &amp; Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-35

pitching power, so he converted him into a catcher. In 1901 Bresnahan went to the Baltimore American League team as a catcher and remained there until the middle of 1902 when he joined John McGraw in the Zepplin to the N. Y. Giants. In 1903 and 1904 Bresnahan played both catch and outfield for the Giants, but in 1905 McGraw made him the regular backstop—and that has been his trade since.

At the end of the 1908 season Bresnahan was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for cash and players—total value estimated at $50,000. He managed and caught for the Cards during 1909, 1910 and 1911. In 1912 he had a disagreement with the Card owners and his contract was cancelled—but only after the Cards settled with him at his terms.

Bresnahan joined the Cubs during the 1913 season and was a player until after the close of the 1914 season. Then he became manager and later a "poor victim of war."

United States Balanced Tires

At Last— the 'Balanced' Tire

The greatest forward step ever made in pneumatic tires

On January 8th, in the Saturday Evening Post, we announced that at last we had made pneumatic rubber tires more like other dependable articles of merchandise.

Stop and analyze this statement—"more like other dependable articles of merchandise."

Unless backed up by results, it would be almost commercial suicide for a manufacturer to make such a statement. Now we are ready to tell you the reason for this fearless confidence in our

To be 100 per cent. efficient, a tire must be absolutely 'balanced'—that is, the rubber tread and the fabric carcass of the tire must give equal wear.

'Balance' the tire maker's goal

To have perfect 'balance' the rubber tread must have enough resiliency to absorb road shocks that tend to disintegrate the fabric, and still must have the toughness to give long wear.

Too much toughness reduces resiliency; too much resiliency sacrifices toughness.

Full, complete tire efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of the rubber tread and the fabric carcass—neither may be stronger nor weaker than the other.

This is the goal we have reached

By producing this complete 'balance' between resiliency and toughness in the tread, and between fabric and rubber in the carcass, we have secured

100 per cent. efficiency in United States Individualized Tires, or absolute 'balance'.

Since September, sales have increased steadily month by month up to the recent highest increase of 354 per cent.—this tells the story.

ROAD BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Engineer Clark Describes Work Done in Ellenville With a View to Future Rebuilding at the Least Expense.

"A Concrete Pavement Tamped by Rolling" is the title of an interesting three-page article with illustrations by P. Edwin Clark, the well known civil engineer of Ellenville, in the issue of "Good Roads," published in New York city, for March 4th, which describes the construction of the concrete pavement on Canal street, Ellenville.

The construction of curbs and pavement on Canal street, between Main and Market streets, was authorized by the Ellenville board of trustees in 1914, and concrete was decided on. A survey, plan and profile were ordered, not only for the block to be improved, but for a distance of 2,900 feet, taking in several blocks at each end.

"Canal street," says Mr. Clark, "in the early days was known as a turn-pike or plank road, and proof of this was found while excavating for subgrade. For almost the entire length of the pavement the old stringers were found, all rotted, with one exception, which was a piece of lumber 4 by 6 inches, and about 29 feet long. All of one end and about one-half of the other was in excellent state of preservation. Upon inquiry, it was found that the last of these stringers had been placed in the road about sixty years ago."

After describing the preparation of the road for concrete work, Mr. Clark describes the method of tamping. He says:

"Instead of the ordinary method of hand tamping, a roller was used. This roller consisted of a pipe three inches in inside diameter and 16 feet long, filled with dry sand to give it additional weight. Each end of the pipe was fitted with a long, hard wood plug (made of maple), turned in a lathe so as to give it a close fit. The outside end of the plug was grooved and fitted with a handle made of 3/4 inch round iron."

"The concrete was dumped from wheelbarrows, one man spreading it, using a long handled shovel for that purpose. As fast as spread it was thoroughly rolled with the pipe roller, worked by two men, one at each end."

"It was found that by continuous rolling for a short time, all air bubbles were forced out as well as all excess water, which was carried ahead. This was accomplished by rolling back and forth across the pavement and at different times lifting the roller clear of the concrete, carrying it back to the curb and then rolling toward the concrete last placed. This kept all of the excess water away from the curb and mixed it with the freshly dumped batch. As soon as the concrete had set, sand was spread over the top to a depth of about one inch, and kept thoroughly wet for ten days, then allowed to dry out. The result of this method is a very solid and practically impervious pavement."

Transverse expansion joints were left every 30 feet, the expansion joint filler being protected on each side by a row of Dunn wire-cut-lug bricks, and under these transverse joints for a distance of at least eight inches on each side and a depth of three inches below the subgrade, an additional thickness of concrete was placed.

The first section was contracted for by the village, which furnished and delivered all materials. The Thompson-Wooster Contracting Company of Walden furnished all tools, forms, mixer and labor, on the following basis: Pavement, 45 cents per square yard; curb, 30 cents per lineal foot.

The second section was built by Jacob Weber, a local contractor; the village furnished all material and the use of a 10-ton gasoline roller, the contractor furnishing the fuel and the engineer to operate the roller. The excavation for this work was made by the contractor who bid 58 cents per cubic yard for all excavation measured in place, including rolling and bringing subgrade to its required shape; 30 cents per square yard for concrete pavement, and 30 cents per lineal foot for curb.

The total cost of pavement under the second contract, including engineering, inspection, assessment list and all other expenses, was $1.26 per square yard. The cost of crushed stone was high, due principally to unsatisfactory steam drills, poor facilities for transporting rock from quarry face to crusher, and inadequate storage facilities.

The height of curb was established at 10 1/2 inches. "This was done," says Mr. Clark, "in order to provide for future repair or improvement, to consist of a brick pavement to be laid upon the worn-out concrete surface. By using the present concrete for a sub-base and putting in a cement filler under the brick instead of sand, a new pavement would be secured at a small cost."

In conclusion, he says:

"The pavement laid under the first contract has had one year's wear, consisting of mixed traffic, both heavy and light, automobiles and teams. It is to be noted that under these conditions the pavement has set shows no sign of wear. Some of the 3-foot sections show a slight straight-line crack where the 15-foot form was removed, while in other sections no cracks or any other lines have so far appeared."

Scene of Villa's Repulse by American Troops

ARMY CAMP AT COLUMBUS, NEW MEXICO.

This is the scene of Villa's murderous attack on American citizens and soldiers at Columbus, N. M., where nine civilians and six troopers were killed before the outlaws were driven from the town.

In the foreground are the tents of the United States soldiers comprising the border guard at this point, while in the background at the left are seen some of the houses of the town, from which citizens were dragged by the brigands to be shot or burned.

Monument of Skulls.

The Turks, when they defeated the Serbs in 1849, erected at Nish a rough tower composed alternately of bones of rocks and Serb skulls cemented together. Of the 12,000 or so skulls originally included, all except one, which was too firmly embedded in the mortar, have been carried away by unsentimental curiosity seekers.

Explaining "Tabby Cat."

Few people realize that the name "Tabby cat" owes its origin to Atab, a famous street of Bagdad, chiefly occupied by the manufacture of the silk on stuffs called Atabi, or taffeta. The wavy markings of the watered silk resemble pussy's coat, and this is how "tabby" came into use as a common expression.

Feathered Alarm Clocks.

A fashion note recommending peacocks as a suitable gift to a family having a formal garden betrays the writer's ignorance of the beautiful lyric utterances to which the fabled bird usually lends moved at 4 a. m. or thereabouts. The suitability of this gift depends entirely on the garden's proximity to the house.

From the Soil.
The Russian army is in the main a peasant army. Tartars, Little Russians, Finns, Lithuanians, Tchouvash, Khirgise, Esths, Poles and Circassians are all represented, but the mass of the soldiers come from the Krestian or peasant classes.

Had the Elements of Success.
"He started life with a shoestring and now he has a million dollars. Seems incredible, eh?" "Not at all. I should consider that a man who could get anybody to buy one shoe string was inevitably bound to succeed"—Judge.

Composition of Wheat Grain.

THE QUEER HINDUS

They Rival the Chinese in Their
Odd Ideas and Customs.

CASTE RULES THE SERVANT.

He Doesn't Like Work, Anyway, and
Generally Finds a Way to Dodge It.
Playing the Stringed Vina is a Specie
of Unmusical Torture.

I had thought China was a queer place and that the Chinese had queer customs, but China can't enter into the same afternoon with India. If one had told me about their manners and customs before I got to India I would have laughed heartily and set him down in my little book. There are some things that a Hindu will do and some that he will not do. Work is not so prominent on the latter list. One thing that a Hindu will not do is play on a flute. He would rather go to the fogging post than dash off a section on a flute. But he will play a stringed instrument, called a vina, similar to the instrument played by David in the tent of Saul. This instrument looks as if it had originally been intended for a carpet stroller, but had fallen into the hands of a musically inclined person who had borrowed a couple of piano wires and was determined to lower rents. After hearing an able-bodied Hindu pick on an instrument of this kind one can't help wishing that they would put it in the same class with the flute.

A Hindu's idea of music is to make all the noise he can. He doesn't care anything about time or rhythm. All his energy is expended in volume. Hindu musicians are all large, splendidly muscled fellows, who play as if they were going to a gymnasium regularly. When one hears them playing on a vina one can't help wondering how David ever came to make such an impression on Saul.

As soon as I got to India I hired a servant. It sounds mighty big—until you know what you have to pay a "boy" in India. A servant is called a "boy" even though he has whiskers and grandchildren. He said that his name was Thumbo Ramalingum, or words to that effect. I couldn't remember the last assignment, so I called him Thumbo, and for days I longed to ask if there was a finger in his family. He wore a skirt and a sheet twisted around his head. He was to be my waiter for his own table boy. When you go to spend a day or two with a friend you always take your own boy along to wait on you. My boy was to mend my clothes, black my shoes, get my bath water ready and hold my shirt. The way he talked I wasn't to do anything except open my mail, put my feet on the table and enjoy life. But I soon found out that his idea and mine differed quite widely as to what enjoyment of life was.

A few minutes before the first meal he suddenly appeared, "a bit flushed," and explained that he was of too high caste to wait on table. I tried to show him that it was an honor to be a good and efficient table waiter, but he wouldn't budge a step—he'd rather serve than wait on table. So I had to look around and hustle up another boy to do that part of the work. Every time I wanted him to do anything it was against his caste. His caste seemed to have a special enmity toward all work. When I wanted him to carry my bags he begged leave to be excused as his caste didn't allow him to do such manual work, and when I gave him my shoes to be blacked he looked at me in horror. It was expressly against his caste to touch leather—a product of the sacred cow.

One day when I told him to pick the hair out of my brush he looked at me sadly and then began to tell me about a nephew that had suddenly departed this flesh and would be so kind as to give half a rupee to the grief-stricken father and the other half to the inconsolable uncle. That was more than I could stand, and on the spot I told him that he was discharged, fired, and got out as fast as he could.

"Thank you, sahib, thank you," said Thumbo with a profound salute. I told him that he needn't thank me for firing him, but he only bowed his head and thanked me more profusely than ever. His gratitude was as pronounced as if I had given him a rupee.

"Will you give me a recommendation kindly for the good boy I have been, sahib?"

After what a poor servant he had been, that was the last straw. It would be underhanded to foist him off on somebody else, and then suddenly I saw a way out. "Yes," I agreed enthusiastically, and I wrote for him.

The bearer of this note with the unpronounceable name has been in my employ for two weeks. During this time I have aged perceptibly. He is a servant of caste, but he never lets work interfere with his caste. When he came to me he was a man of family, but at the rate which his family has been depleted I doubt if he has left more than enough children to last one week. You will find him especially good at getting your shirt studs in backward and at pulling off the tips of your shoestrings.

Thumbo, who made pretense of being an English scholar, read the recommendation carefully, but his mastery of words was such that he could not quite follow the meaning.

"Thank you, sahib, thank you," he said, too proud to admit that it was not clear to him. "It will be of great help to me."

"And to the other fellow, too," I said as he saluted and passed out of my life—Homer Gray in Louie's.

DARCY LEADS THEM ALL IN VICTORIES

Les Darcy, Australian Marvel.

Les Darcy, the sensational Australian middleweight, won more fights in 1915 than any other fighter of prominence in the world. He had 13 bouts and won 12. His only defeat was by Jeff Smith, whom he beat twice later. Darcy's victories included two knockouts over Eddie McGorty and a decision over Jimmy Clabby, which gives him a good claim to the middleweight championship.

Charley White runs second in victories with ten, nine of which were knockouts. He also boxed seven no-decision bouts and one draw. Bat Levinsky had the most fights—28. He won one, lost one, boxed one draw and 25 no-decision bouts. The record of Freddy Welsh, lightweight champion, is a joke. He was in 19 bouts and all were no-decision affairs. Freddy refused to risk his title.

The same goes for Jess Willard, heavyweight champion. He was in the ring once in 1915 and that was when he won the title. The records of the leading performers are as follows:

READY FOR EASTERN REGATTA

Stanford University Eight Hard at Work Preparing for Big Event at Poughkeepsie.

Brimful of confidence inspired by their showing at Poughkeepsie last season, the Stanford University eight, the California Giants, are hard at work preparing for the big event to be held at Poughkeepsie next June. Western rowing experts entertain the opinion that the Cardinal crew, with the experience gained last season, will be more formidable. The ship's company which lost to Cornell only by an eyelash will be practically intact. Bill Blosser, a victim of the five-year rule, will be the only absentee.

A coaching launch capable of making 17 miles an hour has been installed for the use of Guernsey and will facilitate his work in polishing up the Cardinal oarsmen. As Stanford has been invited to participate again in the eastern regatta, whether it wins the coast title or not, a strenuous effort will be made to include the coast title in the Stanford's crew luggage when it goes east. The entire university has been aroused to enthusiasm and determination over Stanford's showing on its first trip into foreign territory.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, March 15.—Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in their rooms in Hut-ton's Hall.

Philip Vining of New Salem called on friends here Tuesday.

After a short prayer service Thursday evening the members of the congregation of the Reformed Church will hold a meeting for the election of two deacons and two elders for the ensuing year in place of Virgil Britt and John R. Monroe, elders, and Chester McGraff and Elvin Hutchings, deacons. Every member of the congregation is urged to be present at this meeting.

Ray Doyle of Kingston spent Tuesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. LeGrand Doyle, on Riverside avenue. The St. Patrick's dime social held at the Methodist parsonage Tuesday evening was well attended and all had a most delightful time. The entertainment was good, each participant doing justice to their several parts. The refreshments were thoroughly enjoyed and the home made ice cream was excellent.

Jacob Miller and Wesley Van Wagner, carpenters and builders, have taken the contract to build a new set of hatches for the boat Helen Roach, which was lost in the gale of December 26, 1915.

SHANDAKEN.

Shandaken, March 14.—Daniel T. Misner of Westkill has moved in the house formerly occupied by Frank Yerry. Dan has been engaged to work for F. S. Osterhout.

The new store of F. S. Osterhout will open about April 1 with a new stock of groceries and fruit. During the summer there will be an ice cream parlor and a soda fountain in connection with the store.

The Fulton Furniture Company have shut down the factory for a few days to make some repairs to their boiler house.

Oliver Holden, an old resident of this place, and a veteran of the Civil War, died one day last week. His funeral was held on Thursday in the Shandaken cemetery.

A large congregation gathered to hear the pastor, the Rev. D. N. F. Blakeley, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, preach on Sunday last. He took for his text Micah 6: 8, "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good. What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy God."

The salary supper given by the Ladies' Aid Society in the church hall on Thursday night was a complete success. A large crowd attended. The proceeds amounted to forty-six dollars.

Mrs. E. Riseley of Kingston spent the week end with her daughter,

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, March 15.—The baseball war affected Roger Bresnahan in this way; it made it possible for him to earn $20,000 for one season's work in the majors and then it greased the chutes so that he could slide easily into the soft position as owner of a minor league club at a bargain figure.

Quite frequently of late some of our sob producing brothers have painted a sad, sad picture of "Rajah"—one that depicted him as an innocent victim of the "cruel" war. But those who wept for Bresnahan have wasted their tears.

Here are the facts in the Bresnahan case: When the 1914 season ended "Rajah" merely was a player drawing $5,000 a year. Had there been no war, it is likely that his salary for 1915 and 1916 would have been shaved down. As to 1917—well, by that time "Rajah" would have been nearing his 38th year and the chances are he would have been headed toward the minors.

"Rajah" Got His Price.

However Bresnahan's salary for 1915, 1916 and 1917 probably would not have averaged over $1,000—a total of $12,000 for three years' labor. That's what he'd have gathered in had there been no war. But there was a war. And "Rajah" was "victimized" in this way: The Reds flirted with him but in the end "Rajah" remained "faithful" to organized baseball—for a price. The price was the management of the Cubs and a three year iron-clad contract—said to have been dictated by Bresnahan—calling for a salary of $10,000 per year.

"Rajah" got his $10,000 last season—and then came peace. Joe Tinker deposed Bresnahan as manager of the Cubs but "Rajah" isn't worrying, because as the price for tearing up that contract he got $10,000 in cash, became a free agent, and had everything arranged so that he could buy the Toledo franchise in the American Association for little more than it cost for a sack of "makins."

$20,000 for one year's work—and the chance to buy a club that ought to pay some big dividends each year. That's how Bresnahan suffered because of the war.

Poor old "Rajah!"

Has Played 21 Years.

Bresnahan is one of the real veterans of the national game—but the fact that has been generally overlooked. The 1915 season marked the end of his 21st year as a professional and "Rajah" insists that he still retains two or three years of first class baseball in his system. "Rajah's" history is unique. He was born in Ireland in 1880 and came here when a boy. He mastered baseball at a very tender age and showed such great promise as an amateur pitcher that he was given a tryout in 1896—when 16 years old—with the Ohio team.

The following season he joined the Washington Club, then in the National League. He pitched for that outfit in '97 and '98 but only with fair success and at the end of '98 he was turned over to Minneapolis. In 1900 he was recalled by the Cubs and from then on he became a big league fixture.

Converted Into Catcher.

The Cub manager, however, wasn't impressed with "Rajah's"

LOOKING FOR WORK

Everywhere men complain about work; even boys and girls in school or business find work tedious and irksome, but it isn't the work half so much as their own lack of physical strength that makes it hard.

Rich blood, strong lungs and healthy digestion make work pleasurable in business, in school or even housework, and if those who are easily tired—who are not sick, but weak and nervous—would just take Scott's Emulsion for one month and let its pure concentrated food create richer blood to pulsate through every artery and vein—let it build a structure of healthy tissue and give you vigorous strength—you would find work easy and would look for more. Insist on Scott's.

Scott &amp; Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-35

pitching power, so he converted him into a catcher. In 1901 Bresnahan went to the Baltimore American League team as a catcher and remained there until the middle of 1902 when he joined John McGraw in the Zepplin to the N. Y. Giants.

In 1903 and 1904 Bresnahan played both catch and outfield for the Giants, but in 1905 McGraw made him the regular backstop—and that has been his trade since. At the end of the 1908 season Bresnahan was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for cash and players—total value estimated at $50,000. He managed and caught for the Cards during 1909, 1910 and 1911. In 1912 he had a disagreement with the Card owners and his contract was cancelled—but only after the Cards settled with him at his terms. Bresnahan joined the Cubs during the 1913 season and was a player until after the close of the 1914 season. Then he became manager and later a "poor victim of war."

Whitney Will Attempt to Defy Turf Tradition

HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY.

Never in the history of the Kentucky Derby, which is the great classic of the annual race meet at Churchill Downs, Louisville, has a single stable annexed the race two seasons in succession. Harry Payne Whitney, who won the Derby last year with his filly Regret, will attempt this year to upset this forty-year-old tradition. He has named seven eligibles for the Derby. Last year he broke one record for the race, as Regret was the first filly to win it.
